BRIDGES ASKS BUREAUS HALT HUGE SPENDING

Warns of Billions Being Wasted

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23—A charge that taxpayers' money is being wasted by continuance of "a war inflated federal burocracy bent on spending" was made today by Sen. Bridges [R., N. H.], ranking Republican member of the senate appropriations committee.

Sen. Bridges

Bridges declared in a statement that government bureaus are planning to spend 146 billion dollars of unexpended balances now in their possession and nearly 25 billion dollars in the form of new spending measures now before congress—all in addition to a regular budget of possibly 25 billion dollars.

He urged President Truman to make the government "more orderly and less costly" by proceeding immediately to eliminate all war emergency agencies and clear thru congress any war time functions that are believed necessary in peace time.

Time for Action

"We all remember how the New Deal came into office with a promise to cut federal expenditures 25 per cent, and then proceeded to turn the federal treasury into a political slush fund," Bridges asserted. "This is the time for action to make sure that the billions which the American people have provided to carry on a war shall not be diverted for any other purpose, including the corraling of votes for the administration."

The New Hampshire senator said there is little evidence that war time burdens on taxpayers will be lightened appreciably unless the tax payers themselves "awake and protest vigorously." Current talks about post-war tax revisions will mean nothing unless the government spending which makes taxes necessary is reduced to reasonable limits, he said.

Recalls Taft Figures

He called attention to the recent estimate of Sen. Taft [R., O.] that currently there are approximately 50 billion dollars in new and proposed spending. Some of these spending proposals listed by Bridges were: 500 million dollars for a national food allotment stamp plan, 200 million for rural electrification, 600 million to the states for health programs, 50 million to aid the states in eliminating river pollution, 80 million to subsidize public housing, 500 million to raise federal salaries, 1 billion 350 million for an additional program planned by the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, 25 million for the inter-American highway, 500 million for the Commodity Credit corporation, and an estimated 3 billion dollars in loan aid to the British in addition to the billions provided under the Bretton Woods international monetary agreement and the 3½ billion provided for the export-import bank.

Urges Congress to Act

Bridges recommended that if President Truman fails to eliminate war time federal agencies, congress should undertake the job of demobilizing these agencies thru its power over appropriations. He also proposed that the regular bureaus and agencies of the government be stripped of their war time additions and that emergency personnel be returned to private employment and not "pensioned" to some other federal agency.

Bridges called upon congress to use the utmost caution in considering requests for the billions of dollars of spending now pending. Not only are many of these requests for public funds in untried fields, but the evidence supporting them is "open to serious question," he said.

43 Mile Wind, Rain and Hail Batter City

A hail and thunderstorm, accompanied by fog and winds up to 43 miles an hour, lashed Chicago shortly before 4 p. m. yesterday, causing damage in widely scattered sections of the city, capsizing at least five sailing vessels on the lake, and snarling traffic everywhere.

Thomas O'Boyle

Lightning killed Thomas O'Boyle, 17, of 408 N. Laramie av., and stunned 12 other boys as they were playing football in Merrick park at Race and Long avs. Harry Benedict, 31, 2053 N. Lockwood av., was severely burned by lightning while playing baseball in Oakton park, Skokie.

The storm, which spent its fury in less than half an hour, was sighted from the lake as a line squall an hour before it flashed out of the west. Hundreds of yachtsmen who ventured out despite advance storm warnings were caught in the squall. No one was lost altho about a dozen needed assistance in reaching port.

Yachtsmen in Danger

Contestants in the Chicago Yacht club's Commodore Sheldon Clark regatta were imperiled as they were making for port after the race.

Among yachtsmen whose craft capsized were Carl Schulz, 730 Lake av., Wilmette; Robert K. Cameron, 7525 Berkshire st., River Forest, and Don Keller. All the capsized boats were recovered.

Raymond H. Dodge, 10 Poplar pl., La Grange, president of the Automatic Screw Machine Products company, was rescued after he was swept off his sloop near Navy pier. His daughter, Peggy, remained aboard as wind tore to shreds the sails of the sloop.

Lightning struck the Gage Park High school at 56th st. and Artesian av., a building at 1317 N. Oakley blvd., and a street car at Montrose av. and Broadway, but occupants and passengers escaped injury. Damage to the school was $2,000. Porches were blown off two flat buildings.

Trees Blown Down

Hailstones measuring an inch in diameter fell on the northwest side. The Beverly Hills section bore the brunt of damage on the south side. Twenty trees were blown down in the area bounded by Halsted st., Western av., 95th and 103d sts.

Near 3600 Lakewood av., a falling tree pinned four parked cars and stopped traffic moving from Wrigley field.

Many motorists were forced to stop and park when they ran into a fog as dense as black smoke, which settled just before the storm. Road barricades in Lincoln park and on the Outer dr., were swept down by the wind.

Forecaster H. L. Jacobson of the Chicago weather bureau said that a period of unseasonal heat and humidity, which preceded the storm, was precipitated by an air mass from sultry New Orleans, La. He reported the rainfall at .53 of an inch.

LIFE OF KINDNESS ENDS FOR DOG, 22

He Never Heard a Harsh Word or Had Poor Food

Twenty-two years ago Mrs. Bertha D'Lia, 1621 Huron st., came home from a Charlie Chaplin slapstick comedy and found five lively squirming puppies had been born to her dog in a basket under the kitchen stove. One of the pups snuggled his nose in her hand and, for a while, stayed there—to remain the pet of the D'Lia household as Charlie Chaplin D'Lia.

Yesterday, at the ripe old dog's age of 22 years, equivalent to approximately 100 years of human life, Charlie ate his breakfast, looked up at his mistress with a gratifying wag of his tail—and fell dead. His service as a companion to Mrs. D'Lia, whose husband died three years ago, had ended.

A Marvel to Experts

The sturdy, little dog, partly bulldog and partly fox terrier, had been a marvel to dog experts and trainers who knew of his longevity. His mistress, however, attributed his many years to "good food and loving kindness."

"I always saw to it that my Charlie was taken care of and never used a harsh word against him," she said. "I fed him best and first."

During war time meat rationing, Mrs. D'Lia said, Charlie received his regular portion of meat at his one daily meal. Red points were used on Charlie and she took what was left over, she said.

Funeral Services Arranged

Funeral services for Charlie will be managed today by Mrs. Viola Larsen, 513 N. Ashland av., director of the Orphan of the Storm haven for refuge dogs. Mrs. Larsen, who became a friend of Mrs. D'Lia when Mrs. D'Lia helped her in rescuing dogs in Italian neighborhoods, said she would pick up the body of Charlie at 11 a. m. and place it in a cemetery "fit for the king of Chicago canines."

AUSSIES REFUSE TO HELP DUTCH FIGHT NATIVES

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 23 (AP)—Longshoremen announced today that they would not load aboard four Dutch ships here any materials intended for use against Indonesian nationalists in the Netherlands East Indies.

Dutch authorities announced that Dutch and other allied troops were en route in the Dutch destroyer Trompf and transport Balikpapan for garrison duties.

Sofia to Bucharest Is Trip from Poverty to Opulence

BY DAVID DARRAH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BUCHAREST, Romania, Sept. 23—With Petko Secoulov, general secretary of the Bulgarian regency, this correspondent has just made a 260 mile trip by car from Sofia to Bucharest, crossing the Danube at Ruse [Ruschuk] and Giurgiu over roads so bad on the Bulgarian side that the journey required 15 hours.

The Bulgarian countryside from Sofia to the Danube is a bleak stretch. Prolonged dry spells burned up crops and dried up streams. This means a food shortage and hunger this winter in a land which is preëminently agricultural.

Bulgaria is strongly occupied but except at the Danube practically no Russian soldiers were seen in this region. Just outside Sofia was a road block but from there on we encountered no controls until we reached the river at 2:30 p. m. We had left Sofia at 7 a. m.

Road Gets Rougher

Fifty miles out of Sofia the road became so rough that it was really more of a trail than a road, and there were few road signs. There were no farmhouses, the peasants all living in villages scattered here and there.

Towards noon we reached the town of Pleven.

From Pleven to the Danube the country was flat and the roads so ba that Secoulov's German car, a Daimler-Benz made in Stuttgart, could hardly negotiat some places and we had two blowouts and no more spare tires. We still had 50 miles to go before we could get to a garage. With luck we made Ruse, a Bulgarian frontier town on the Danube, without another puncture.

From Ruse a ferry goes across the river to Giurgiu on the Romanian side. Normally there is much traffic on the wide Danube.

Today no boats except the ferry pass. But the chimney of a big sugar factory was smoking.

Few Russians at Ruse

Ruse was full of Bulgarian soldiers but few Russians. We checked with the police for clearance across the river. Then there was a long wait for the ferry. No one knew just when it would leave. It seems to depart on impulse. We had had no food all day and there was no water along the road.

While waiting for the ferry we found a garage, got the tires repaired, and had some cakes and tea in a small shop on the main square. Restaurants were closed until 5 p. m.

There were some Russian soldiers in Ruse but fewer than we would have expected. An American in Ruse is a curious sight. People stared at this uniformed correspondent who was apparently the first American they had seen.

We saw much American equipment, trucks, cars, and jeeps about the town of Ruse. Most people we saw were poorly clothed and many children were in rags.

At 6 p. m. we drove on a small ferry which was pulled across by a tug. It was carrying several American trucks loaded with scrap wood. The main ferryboat, which is ponderous and carries several railway cars, tanks, and large vehicles, wasn't crossing today.

Romanian Side Rich

Giurgiu on the Romanian side, in contrast with Ruse, was spruce and trim. Comfortable houses and buildings were there as in all Romania in contrast with Bulgaria.

We checked with the police and then took a long, excellent, tree bordered road from Giurgiu, passing many automobiles, and reached Bucharest shortly after 10 o'clock.

Bucharest is opulent, expansive, brilliantly lighted, and its cafes, hotels, theaters, and night clubs were crowded. On the surface it shows few signs of just having emerged from a disastrous war.

Line traces David Darrah's 260 mile journey which required 15 hours.

JAPS' PREMIER DENIES HIROHITO HAS ABDICATED

TOKYO, Sept. 24 [Monday] (AP)—Premier Higashi-Kuni told American army authorities today there is no foundation to a Chungking radio report that Emperor Hirohito had abdicated. The premier's statement was in reply to a request from Gen. MacArthur's intelligence section, which was checking numerous queries from American correspondents on the Chungking report.

Brig. Gen. Bonner Fellers, Gen. MacArthur's aide, said earlier he had no report that Emperor Hirohito had abdicated.

The Chinese report said Hirohito had acted to avoid allied punishment as a war criminal.

DOIHARA, TOP FIELD GENERAL, PUT IN PRISON

BULLETIN

TOKYO, Sept. 24 [Monday]—(AP)—The supreme allied command acted today to establish control over Japanese economics, including wages and prices, and instructed the imperial government to institute rationing of essential commodities which are in short supply.

TOKYO, Sept. 23 (AP).—Japan's top field general was jailed today, and with former dictator Hideki Tojo and other suspected war criminals faced trial within a month.

The Nippon Times said the commerce ministry would order all major mining and manufacturing companies to make financial reports in the first step toward stripping Japan of war industries.

Following the announcement yesterday of Washington's directive for the roundup of all the war makers of Japan, Gen. MacArthur said trials by military tribunal would begin soon.

Gen. Doihara Surrenders

That was interpreted here as meaning some would begin in October. A dispatch from Manila said it was possible some of the first cases there might be started within a week.

Latest to join the Yokohama prison population was Gen. Kenji Doihara, sinister figure in Japanese military intelligence, who surrendered today. Doihara only recently had been placed in command of the Japanese 1st army, respite his record as a leader in the conquests on the Asiatic continent, where he was known as the "Lawrence of Manchuria."

Doihara arrived with some of his staff at the city hall and was unceremoniously escorted to the prison, where 34 other suspects are confined.

Wathakan Wichit, Siam's ambassador to Japan, was taken into custody at Miyanoshita, near Tokyo. He is another on MacArthur's "wanted" list.

In Three Categories

Preliminary plans for the trial of all persons charged with war crimes call for dividing the defendants into three categories:

1. Those who planned the war—Dictator Tojo, members of his cabinet, and others high in the councils of the nation.

2. Officers who permitted brutalities—Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, held responsible for the Bataan death march, and others.

3. Japanese soldiers or civilians who committed atrocities.

It was learned that military tribunals instead of a regular court martial would be used because the former provides for greater power and more latitude. The president of a military tribunal can lay down its own rules of evidence and instruct on the degree of crime. Members of the tribunals probably will include representatives of the allied nations.

People Unconcerned

Since crimes are charged against the Japanese all over the Pacific, more than one tribunal will be set up. Where possible, they will sit BACK VETS' JOB RIGHTS; 36 POINT GI'S STAY IN U. S.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 [Special]—Selective service today reaffirmed war veterans' rights to their former jobs in a policy statement for the guidance of draft board personnel. In other developments the war department:

1. Lowered the screening scores for shipment of officers and enlisted men overseas, saying it made another 300,000 ineligible for such duty.

2. Announced the army will buy 42 per cent less food in the next 12 months.

Details of the developments follow.

RIGHTS TO JOBS

Selective service, in its statement, stood pat on its contention that World War II. veterans have an absolute right to their former jobs.

The policy, based on selective service's interpretation of the draft law, has come to be known as the super-seniority issue. It has been under attack for months by union leaders.

Selective service held that war veterans with reëmployment rights cannot be required to join a labor union to get their jobs back.

Local Boards Instructed

"Union membership or other conditions not enumerated in the law may not be required of a veteran as a prerequisite to his reinstatement [in his old job]," the agency instructed local draft boards.

The agency ruled that a veteran is entitled to his former position, or a job of like seniority, status, and pay. The agency said this is so even if it means firing an employe who was on the job before the veteran entered service.

In some cases this could mean discharge of a veteran of World War I.

Agree on Seniority

Union leaders have agreed that the seniority of a veteran of World War II. should be cumulative to cover the period in service, but that it should not take precedence over employes hired before the veteran.

Maj. Gen. Hershey, draft director, said in a statement, however:

"Our interpretation of veterans' reëmployment rights as provided in the selective service act is based solely on the language of the act and what we believe to be the intent of congress."

Selective service also ruled that in border line cases, the question of whether a veteran's former position was temporary "should be resolved in favor of the veteran."

The policy statement set forth further that a veteran loses reëmployment rights only when it is "impossible or unreasonable" for an employer to rehire him.

SCREENING SCORES RULING

In lowering the screening scores governing overseas duty the war department said in a statement that enlisted men will not be sent overseas if their point score or age, as of the Sept. 2, 1945, computation is equal to or exceeds 36 points, or 37 years of age, or 34 years of age with more than one year of service.

Officers will not be sent overseas, the department added, if their point score or age, as of Sept. 2, this year, is equal to or exceeds:

Male officers, except medical department officers, 48 points.

Higher for Medical Corps

Male officers, medical corps and dental corps, 45 points or 40 years of age.

Male officers, veterinary corps and medical administrative corps, 30 points or 35 years of age.

Nurses, 12 points or 30 years of age.

Medical department dietitians and physical therapy aids, 18 points or 30 years of age.

The department added that women's army corps personnel will not be sent abroad.

FOOD BUYING PROGRAM

The army's reduced food buying program for the next 12 months, the war department said, is expected to cover the following:

Purchase of 53 per cent less meat, 48 per cent less fats and oils, 51 per cent less sugar, and 61 per cent less dairy products.

Because of army inventories of some items, acquired during seasons of peak production, the estimated reduction in food requirements may be even greater, the department added in a statement.

No more cheese will be needed by the army until well into 1946.

PLANS DECISION ON SHARING OF BOMB SECRETS

Hint Britain Won't

NEWCASTLE, England, Sept. 23 (AP)—Stafford Cripps, president of Britain's board of trade, indicated tonight Britain did not expect to share the atomic bomb secret with all "major" powers, and warned that there must be a world federation within 10 years or civilization would be destroyed by atomic power.

"We may have a few years yet wherein the atomic bomb is not a common weapon in the hands of all major powers," Cripps said in a speech, "but it is quite idle to imagine it can be preserved as a secret. During these years we must find a way whereby we can settle world differences without war."

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 [Special]—President Truman said tonight he personally will make the decision, when the time comes, on his administration's policy toward development and use of atomic energy and the atomic bomb. He will have to make it, he emphasized.

Solemnly asserting that President Lincoln had disregarded the majority view of his cabinet in making his own decision to issue the emancipation proclamation, Mr. Truman indicated he considers the atomic question one upon which the President must assume full personal responsibility.

Standing on the White House steps after his return from a two day outing at the Jefferson Islands club in Chesapeake bay, Mr. Truman held an impromptu press conference to discuss steps he is taking to aid him in arriving at a decision in the interest of the welfare of the country and of its foreign and domestic policy.

Denies Cabinet Argument

He took occasion to deny reports that Commerce Secretary Wallace created an argument in the cabinet Friday by insisting upon release of the atomic bomb secret to soviet Russia and others.

Friday's cabinet session, the President disclosed, was strictly for the purpose of arriving at a decision with reference to the administration's policy on the atomic bomb. He said Wallace took no more active part than any one else. He stated there had been no disagreement on the subject in the cabinet meeting.

He revealed, however, that a premise had been outlined by retiring War Secretary Stimson on plans for the atomic bomb, but said he is not yet ready to say what Stimson's premise was. The discussion, he added, centered around what was thought best for the country and the world.

Working with Congress

The President said he was working on the problem with congressional committees, and that he had recommended no final disposition. Several bills and resolutions governing the future of atomic energy have been introduced in congress.

Mr. Truman's interview took place at the rear entrance to the White House immediately after his return by automobile from the Jefferson Islands expedition. The President arrived at 8 p. m. [EWT] after a 35 mile ride thru the Maryland countryside over highways jammed with Sunday traffic. The 10 car cavalcade was escorted by motorcycle police.

The Presidential party left the island retreat at 5:30 p. m. aboard a coast guard pilot boat which reached the naval academy at Annapolis an hour later. The two day outing was participated in by 150 prominent Democrats, including members of both houses of congress and high government officials.

The club was organized early in the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration as a haven for Democratic bigwigs.

U.S. STRATEGISTS LOOK TO AFRICA FOR 'ATOM' BASE

Study Guard Over Source of Vital Ore

BY WALTER TROHAN
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23—The atomic age is forcing American strategists to eye Africa, the dark continent which this country has traditionally ignored.

The richest deposits of uranium ore, from which comes the destructive power of the atomic bomb, are in Belgian Congo. Other deposits are in Colorado, the Great Bear lake region of Canada, and in Czechoslovakia.

Each of these areas has become important because there are considered to be only two ways of controling the world's most formidable weapon beyond turning the mind of man from war. The first is to control the secrets of theory and manufacture, which is but temporary, as it has been estimated that any industrially productive nation could start from scratch and turn out an atomic bomb in five years.

Source Held One Control

The second is to control the sources of supply of the essential ore. It is considered this will work effectively at least until other and probably cheaper sources of atomic energy are found.

In order to exercise effective control over the Belgian Congo deposits, it is agreed in military circles the United States should have a base off Africa. The base might be in the Cape Verde Islands, which are Portuguese, or Santa Isabel, Spanish island in the Bight of Biafra.

A base off Africa also would appear to be dictated by the recent disclosure that the navy's three 45,000 ton carriers cannot negotiate the Panama canal. These ships could use a base off Africa in going around the Cape of Good Hope, which is a shorter route to some Pacific ports from the east coast than the long voyage around South America.

Could Watch Rubber Sources

An African base would enable the navy to keep an eye on valuable rubber sources in Liberia, the Negro republic. While development of synthetic rubber eased the critical rubber situation in war, the preservation of regular sources of supply still is of high strategic importance.

Acquisition of an African base would involve a neutral nation. In its recent proposal for chains of bases in both oceans, the navy called for a base on an Australian island in the Pacific and on British soil at Bermuda and Newfoundland, where bases are being operated.

The Australian island is Manus in the admiralty group. This country constructed air and naval installations there in carrying out the war in the Pacific.

Once Held by Germany

Manus is one of a group of 40 islands lying off New Guinea. These formerly belonged to Germany and were taken from that country at the close of the World war.

The islands were discovered by the Dutch in 1616, but no landing was made until 1875, when the Germans began occupation.

Manus is approximately 60 miles long and at its highest point is 3,000 feet above sea level. It has an excellent naval harbor. The other islands are scarcely more than reefs.

FIND SPIES KEPT JAPS ADVISED ON PEARL HARBOR

Moved Ships About on Scale Model

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 23 (AP)—Japanese strategists had a detailed scale model of Pearl Harbor, on which, with day-to-day spy information on the grouping of American ships, they plotted the attack on the navy base, American Broadcasting company correspondent Norman Paige said today.

Paige, aboard the battleship Iowa en route to the United States, said American naval officers have a photograph of the Pearl Harbor model, gleaned from the secret files of the Yokosuka navy yard on Tokyo bay.

Model in Big Pool

The photograph showed "a tremendous pool of water whereupon detailed models of every one of our installations was built," Paige said.

"Here Jap strategists waded about or paddled thru on rafts to study each detail of each dock. The Ford Island installations, the drydock, telephone facilities, roads, hillside gun emplacements, barracks, buildings, everything was shown.

"There was also a complete detailed model of all our existing warships at that time which floated outside the little Pearl Harbor. These ship models were moved in as the real ships actually appeared at Pearl Harbor.

Ship Positions Changed

"The positions of these models were changed every day as our maneuvers changed. On the morning of the attack the miniature ships were in the exact position as were the ships at Pearl Harbor. To do this, it is a foregone conclusion that a complete and extensive espionage system and an elaborate communications network were necessary," Paige said.

The model itself was not found by the American officers, the correspondent said, adding that it was believed it had been destroyed before the Americans landed at Yokosuka.

Group of 764 Captives Last Taken Off Kyushu

U. S. S. WICHITA, Nagasaki Harbor, Sept. 23 (AP)—Naval forces led by Rear Adm. Frank G. Fahrion removed the last group of 764 liberated prisoners of war from 19 Kyushu camps yesterday, raising the total for 10 days to 9,041. The Americans numbered 1,512 and included veterans of Bataan, marines who were embassy guards in China, and some navy men and civilians from Wake Island.

U. S. IS PROBING USE, CONTROL OF A-BOMB, WALLACE REVEALS

Government officials are formulating a program for control of the atomic bomb as a weapon and for the peace time use of atomic energy, and this program will be made public in the near future, Henry A. Wallace, secretary of commerce, said yesterday in a press conference at the University of Chicago.

Henry A. Wallace

Expressing support of the full employment bill now before congress, Wallace said he believed industry voluntarily should raise workers' wages considerably above present rates.

Prior to the conference, he spoke on the University of Chicago Roundtable broadcast with Henry Hazlitt, New York newspaper man, and William H. Spencer, midwest director of the war man power commission.

ARREST DRIVER AFTER COLLISION WITH TUOHY CAR

State's Atty. Tuohy was shaken up Saturday afternoon when his car was struck at 79th and Cicero av. by an automobile driven by William Botsch, 44, of 3827 Kenilworth av., Berwyn. Tuohy was accompanied by Detectives Edward Agnew and William Hutchinson.

Botsch was arrested by Willow Springs county highway police on a charge of reckless driving and, on the recommendation of Tuohy, was released on his own recognizance. Damage to the two cars was estimated at $300.

Tuohy's car later stalled at Archer and Cicero avs. and he was taken home by Willow Springs county highway police.

PEARL HARBOR FILES LIKELY TO GO TO CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 (AP)—The senate naval affairs committee probably will decide this week what to do with the navy's ultra-secret files on Pearl Harbor.

Sen. Walsh

Chairman Walsh (D., Mass.) predicted in an interview today that the voluminous data, which was withheld when part of the navy's report was made public recently, will be turned over to the senate-house committee named to investigate the disaster.

The naval committee received the secret files two weeks ago, but Walsh turned them back immediately with orders to the navy to lock them up until the committee decides officially what to do with them.

Walsh declined to discuss the report itself, except to say that neither he nor any committee member had read it.

The navy is understood to be preparing summaries of the document, particularly portions dealing with the breaking of Japan's top secret code before Pearl Harbor. Secretary Forrestal has urged that these portions be kept secret to protect the navy's sources of information.

A canvass of naval committee members showed a majority favors the plan to give the files to the Pearl Harbor investigators, with the provision that if the joint committee does not make the whole report public, the naval committee will. The investigating group is headed by Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) of the senate.

Meanwhile, a Republican senator who asked that his name not be used, said in an interview that he and many of his colleagues had known for months that the Japanese code was broken in November, 1941, prior to the Pearl Harbor attack.

EGYPT DEMANDS BRITISH TROOPS BE WITHDRAWN

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Sept. 23 [Reuters] — The Egyptian cabinet, in a bulletin issued here today, called for the withdrawal of British troops from Egypt and incorportation into Egypt of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Egypt thus officially put forward demands made by Nahas Pasha, the Wafdist [Nationalist] party leader who resigned the premiership last October, in a memorandum to the British ambassador nearly two months ago. The bulletin was issued after consultation with the "Big 13," consultative committee of Egypt's elder statesmen which includes four ex-premiers, but has no Wafdist members.

MEMORIES KEEP 22 FREED HEROES CHAINED TO PAST

Weary Pacific Vets End 14,000 Mile Trip Home

BY NORMA LEE BROWNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Coral Gables, Fla., Sept. 23—He leaned wearily against a wall in the hospital admitting office, blinking his eyes and toying with a card that said "Heroes' phone call fund."

"Aren't you going to use it?" we asked.

"I don't know who to call," he said, forcing a laugh. "I guess I'm just lost."

One of Freed Prisoners

He is Pvt. James I. Ahlstedt of Lincoln, Neb. He is one of 22 liberated prisoners, heroes of Corregidor, Bataan and Wake Island, who arrived on an air transport command hospital plane at the Miami airfield from a Jap prison camp in Manchuria, 14,000 miles away.

They were the first prisoners to be flown out of Manchuria. All litter patients—most of them diagnosed as tubercular—they have been en route since Aug. 24.

They lumbered down from the big C-54, their blue pajamas hanging loosely on their skinny, stooped frames, their faces solemn and dazed.

The gauntness around their eyes and mouths told more than the world's blazing headlines of their treatment during the last 2¼ years.

A few smiled. They said nothing as they piled into the hospital ambulances.

They Stare Silently

They stared silently out the ambulance doors at passing palm trees and pastel bungalows.

One boy sat with his head bowed, all the way to the hospital. When we asked him where his home town was, he made no reply. He looked up and gave us a blank stare with eyes that were red and misty.

"When you've been gone so long, you forget how to act," one explained after they had unloaded at the A. A. F. Biltmore hospital.

Altho the hospital provides free telephone calls home, there was no eager rush for the phone booth.

"I wouldn't know what to say," said Pvt. Philip Milardovich of Phoenix, Ariz. "I'd rather wait a few days."

Some, like Pvt. Ahlstedt, had lost contact with their families. Ahlstedt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ahlstedt, lived in Lincoln when he left there five years ago, at 18, to join the marines with his two brothers. All three were captured on Corregidor and sent to Cabanatuan, then separated.

Their parents have moved from Lincoln.

"All I want," said Ahlstedt, "is to let the folks know where I am, that I'm all right."

One of Four on Plane

Pvt. 1st Class Harris Mercer of Lone Rock, Wash., was one of four marines on the plane who were captured Dec. 23, 1941, after the heroic stand on Wake Island.

Many of the prisoners had survived the tortures of the Bataan death march.

When questioned, they were reluctant at first to talk about their treatment in the Jap prison camps.

"I want to forget it," said Corp. George W. Robinson of Omaha.

"When I told Jap officers I was an infantryman," said Pvt. Robert B. Rossan of Corinth, Miss., "they beat me with a club until I was unconscious."

One was beaten with a cow's tail that had been cured like leather. Another was forced to stand on one foot after he was caught talking with a buddy.

Made a Lot of Plans

"We were just talking about how swell it would be to take a trip in a house trailer if we ever got back to the States," he said.

"We made a lot of plans that first year," one said, "but then the year was gone. And then the second year. And then the third. We didn't know what to count on after that. But we never really gave up hope."

"The newspapers are full of words about what happened to us," said Pvt. Charles Shelton of Phoenix, Ariz. "It's all true. But there aren't any words to tell how we felt inside.

"You know how empty it feels in here when your Mom or Dad dies," he added, touching his chest. "That's how it was all the time."

Other midwestern men on board the plane were: Sgt. Bruce S. Milholland, Dayton, O., and Pvt. 1st Class Howard L. Haase, Steele, N. D.

Booby Trapped Fountain Pen Blows Off Fingers

SEOUL, Korea, Sept. 23 (AP)—The first reported injury of an American soldier since occupation of southern Korea was recorded today when it was disclosed a 17th division sentry suffered the loss of four fingers when he opened a booby-trapped fountain pen. The soldier found the pen on a table in the governor general's palace where Lt. Gen. A. V. Arnold, military governor, has his offices. It exploded when he unscrewed the cap.

WE DON'T WANT TO BE AMERICANS, ISLE OF WIGHT LEADER SAYS

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 23—The people of the little Isle of Wight, off Southampton, tonight roared in protest against a clergyman's suggestion that the island be given to the United States as "a tribute of gratitude and admiration."

The proposal was made by the Rev. Philip Clayton, founder padre of Toc H [Talbot house], a privately financed organization for British service men.

The islanders angrily denounced the suggestion as "too ridiculous to take seriously." John E. B. Seely [Lord Mottistone], lord lieutenant of Hampshire, whose country home is on the island, said, "Such an idea is unthinkable."

"The people would not tolerate it. Altho we have a high regard for the Americans none of us want to be American citizens," said the chairman of the Isle of Wight county council.

RECORD CROWD OF VISITORS AT FORT SHERIDAN

All attendance records were broken yesterday by civilian visitors at Fort Sheridan, where on Saturday military restrictions were lifted requiring passes from those who enter the post.

Service clubs and other meeting places were jammed with parents, wives, and sweethearts of soldiers on the post. Many men now at Fort Sheridan are there for processing after having completed duty overseas. Brig. Gen. John C. Pierce, commanding general, warned relatives of such service men to obtain reservations for rooms before they attempt to spend more than one day near the post. The housing situation makes it difficult to find quarters, he said.

Military police at the fort donned new uniforms, including white helmets, white belts, and white leggings, and set forth on their job, which included giving directions to visitors. Stationary guards were turned into roving policemen, in most cases, and roamed the post in cars or on motorcycles.

ILLINOIS MILITIA MOBILIZES 2,000 IN TEST EXERCISE

Two thousand officers and enlisted men of Chicago units of the Illinois reserve militia participated yesterday in test mobilization exercises and then assembled for ceremonies at which drill attendance trophies were presented by THE TRIBUNE as recognition for volunteer work well done.

The militia, organized four years ago after the Illinois National Guard went to war, tested its disaster and emergency training with maneuvers on the south side. The awards were presented in the parking area south of Soldiers' field.

Men's Sacrifices Lauded

The public does not appreciate the long hours of drill contributed by the militia units and the protection they afford the community, Philip Maxwell, representing THE TRIBUNE, said in presenting the trophies to the winners of drill attendance contests. A rainstorm, symbolic of hardships borne by the military men, failed to mar the ceremonies and the 1st brigade, with the 8th infantry attached, passed in review by motorcade.

Col. Frank H. Bermier of the 1st infantry received the regimental championship trophy for the highest percentage of attendance at armory drills of all regiments in the state.

Other trophies were given to rifle companies having the best attendance records in their Chicago regiments. They were presented to Capt. Swan E. Johnson, company A, 1st regiment; Capt. Leon W. Motzny Sr., company E, 2d regiment, and Capt. John P. Meadows, company G, 8th infantry.

Generals Head Groups

Adj. Gen. Leo M. Boyle was chief reviewing officer. Brig. Gen. George J. May commanded the troops and Brig. Gen. Elden L. Belt was director of operations and training. Col. Joseph Torrence represented Maj. Gen. David McCoach Jr., head of the army's 6th service command.

THE TRIBUNE will present trophies to militia companies at Kankakee, Harrisburg, and Dixon for winning downstate drill attendance contests. The presentation at Kankakee will be made Saturday night. The Kewanee company already has been given its award. The awards were made for a contest conducted during the first six months of the year. The militia units are participating in a new contest of similar nature which started July 1.

Rome Reports Kesselring Will Be Tried in Italy

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Rome radio said tonight that three high-ranking German officers, including Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, would be taken to Italy for trial on war crime charges including "murders of allied airmen shot down behind enemy lines." The broadcast, recorded by the BBC, said Kesselring, his successor as commander of German forces in Italy, Gen. Henrich von Vietinghoff-Scheel, and a Gen. Dostler would be tried for cases which occurred in the Milan, Verona, Bologna, and Pisa areas.

EMILY 'MICKEY' HAHN, AUTHOR, ANNOUNCES PLANS TO BE MARRIED

Emily Hahn

Emily "Mickey" Hahn, author of "China to Me," joined her 14 year old daughter, Carola, at the Winnetka home of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Dawson yesterday and said she and Maj. Charles Boxer, 41, of the British army, father of Carola, will be married "as soon as he gets back home."

Maj. Boxer recently was liberated from a Japanese prison camp in Hong Kong and announced he will come to America. The child was born in Hong Kong during Miss Hahn's internment.

Miss Hahn said she received a cable from Maj. Boxer Saturday saying he would "come home as soon as he could" but his homecoming might be delayed to allow his testimony in a war criminals' trial. She will return to New York Thursday with her daughter.

JAP CRIMINALS' TRIALS TO BEGIN WITHIN MONTH

Top General Is Latest to Be Imprisoned

in the areas where crimes were committed.

The Japanese people were pictured as unconcerned over the prospect of the execution or imprisonment of their former leaders, and as holding Tojo in contempt for failing to commit suicide.

The Japanese government has cooperated closely with American counter-intelligence authorities in rounding up wanted men. The Americans so far have had to arrest only a few.

Aid in Accounting

It appeared that the government was equally ready to cooperate with MacArthur's order for a financial accounting of the empire, including the immense fortune of Emperor Hirohito.

The Nippon Times said the commerce ministry would back its order for mining and manufacturing reports with fines and three year sentences for failure to comply.

MacArthur's requested information will provide the Americans with a complete picture of Japan's major industries because all the big munitions makers and bankers are affected. Reports were ordered from all concerns conducting a 1944 business exceeding 1,000,000 yen [$250,000 at the pre-war exchange rate], including those supervised by the war, navy, and other ministries.

Warns Against Inflation

The Bank of Japan published its first statement since the occupation, announcing its note issue totalled 42 billion yen [$10,500,000,000 pre-war], or seven times its total in 1939. The newspaper Asahi, editorializing that this was a sharp indication of rising inflation, called on the government to maintain stringent control to check the tendency.

It declared the government's statement that inflation could be controled thru increased savings was "not proper and timely when huge amounts of bank notes are issued within a half month."

Asahi said the bank's note issue had increased about 13 billion yen since August. It insisted much of the bank's loans were going to demobilized soldiers and workers as well as air raid victims.

Releases Two Filipinos

It proposed that since these Japanese had pockets full of cash, including a year's pay given the soldiers, that the yen's purchasing value be frozen as one method of controling inflation.

MacArthur issued two orders affecting the Philippines. He called on the Japanese, at the request of the Philippine government, for a complete report on Japanese military personnel in the archipelago and civilians removed from the islands.

He released Gregorio and Eduardo Vargas, sons of the imprisoned Jorge Vargas, ambassador to Japan for the puppet Philippine government. They accompanied their father to prison recently but no charges were lodged. The army will fly them to Manila.

Mothers Fete WAC

Mrs. Eugene I. Payne, Mrs. Edna McCord Rohde, and Corp. Margaret Hastings (left to right) at WAC Mothers' club luncheon yesterday.

WAC Corp. Margaret Hastings, who was lost in the "Shangri-La" valley jungles of New Guinea for 47 days, was special guest yesterday at a luncheon given by the WAC Mothers club of Chicago. Other guests included WAC staff members of the 6th service command and Warrant Officer Mary Waterman, director of the Fort Des Moines, Ia., WAC band.

Corp. Hastings arrived yesterday from Atlantic City, N. J., and will return to the east today. While in Chicago, she was the guest of Mrs. Steven B. McCord, 4250 Clarendon av., national secretary of the WAC Mothers club.

Also attending the luncheon in the Continental hotel were Maj. Doris Epperson and Capt. Esther Patterson, of the 6th service command; Lt. Helen Gray, of Vaughan General hospital, and 15 members of the WAC Mothers club board of directors.

GIs FIND OUT GENERALS HAVE A LOT OF BRASS

BERLIN, Sept. 23 (AP)—The generals got the house but the GIs had the last word.

A 42-room mansion formerly occupied by Walther Funk of the Nazi cabinet was ready for opening as a club for 4,000 American enlisted men. Then it was requisitioned for the exclusive use of generals and colonels.

Commented a non-commissioned officer, writing in "The Grooper," weekly newspaper of the United States group control council: "Any more of that and we won't give 'em their jobs back when this is all over."

U. S. TO SMOOTH PATH HOME FOR JAP PRISONERS

BY ROBERT CROMIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Sept. 23—One of the most curious aftermaths of the war—the problem of persuading the Japanese people to accept the return of 50,000 of their soldiers and laborers captured before the ending of the Pacific war—is now under consideration by American authorities.

There has been no mention whatever in the Japanese press for three and one-half years that Jap soldiers ever surrendered. In fact, the soldiers and sailors taken are resigned to the impossibility of ever returning to their native land. If they are accepted at home as prisoners of other nations are accepted, it will be a major upheaval in Japanese military code and Japanese thought.

The opening gun in the campaign will be a news item which Japanese papers will print quoting Brig. Gen. Bonner F. Fellers, head of the information and dissemination section, as announcing that 75,000 Japanese, Koreans, and Formosans have been captured during the war and will be shipped home as soon as transportation is available.

Points to Hero Welcomes

The story will add that these men were astonished at the treatment accorded them while prisoners of war, that they were well fed and well housed, and further that they are now needed to help rebuild Japan.

The story will also point out that prisoners of other nationalities when returning home receive a hero's welcome, citing Gen. Wainwright's promotion and award of the congressional medal of honor in proof, and will add that Japanese prisoners were captured "while fighting desperately for their country."

Help of the Japanese board of information is being enlisted in support of this major reorientation of Japanese outlook, and this board, which is closely allied to the Jap cabinet, is hopeful of getting a statement from Premier Prince Higashi-Kuni, urging that there be no discrimination against returned soldiers who have been in allied hands.

Bring Democratic Views

The initial story and the Higashi-Kuni statement will be followed up by other stories, radio broadcasts, editorials, and special articles.

According to Lt. Col. J. W. Greene of St. Petersburg, Fla., executive officer to Fellers, the effort to have former prisoners once more fitted into their pre-war status is not entirely unselfish.

"We think the 50,000 Japanese returned here, who have been in contact with Americans and acquainted with the habits and customs of Americans, will be 'human leaflets' for a democratic viewpoint," he said.

Japs Change Viewpoint

Greene also said that when the Japanese board of information was first approached on what the attitude of high Japanese officials would be toward the returning PWs they were noncommittal and inclined not to discuss the question, but since have switched their viewpoint and are anxious to be helpful.

FLYER WANDERS JAPAN 68 DAYS AFTER CRACKUP

Unaware of Peace More than Month

TOKYO, Sept. 23 (AP)—A young naval radioman reported today that he wandered around central Hokkaido for 68 days after his plane crashed, raiding root cellars and hencoops and milking cows for sustenance and didn't learn until Sept. 19 that the war had been over for more than a month.

The flyer, Oliver B. Rasmussen, 23, first class aviation radioman off the carrier Shangri La, escaped with minor injuries in an air crash on July 14 which killed his pilot.

Rasmussen, a former high school track star from Odanah, Wis., on at least one occasion escaped pursuing Japanese with his speedy footwork.

He said he got rations and other gear from the wrecked plane, then set out for the coast, hoping to flag down an American plane, but saw none. His rations were soon exhausted and he lived on wild bird eggs and whatever he could forage off the countryside.

"I made a camp not far from Tomakomai and spotted a cow in a pasture. Every night I milked her and got along all right with what I could steal from cellars and gardens.

"I used to watch a farmer when he came out to milk the cow and could tell he was puzzled because she didn't give out generously."

Boat Swamped in Surf

Early in August Rasmussen made his way to the coast with the idea of stealing a fishing boat and making his way to Okinawa or possibly rejoining the 3d fleet units which were operating in those waters. He found a boat but it swamped in the surf, so Rasmussen decided he had better leave the neighborhood in advance of an investigation.

He went into the hills where he built a crude shack and began systematic raiding of farmhouses.

"I had five places on my route and made them all every night," he said. "Finally, about Sept. 5, the Japs began laying for me and jumped me after a dog barked a warning. I lit out from there with yelling Japs chasing me. I outdistanced most of them easily, but one was quite a sprinter and nearly got me."

About Sept. 15 he caught sight of American planes repeatedly cruising the Japanese skies unmolested, which led him to suspect the war must be over.

"I returned to the beach and marked 'Help' in big letters in the sand and sat down to wait," reported Rasmussen. "By this time I was eating frogs and whatever was handy. On Sept. 19 a Jap came up and I told him from a phrase book that I was an American. He told me the war was over."

A United States army team from Chitose came after Rasmussen the next day and he reached Yokosuka, near here, yesterday where he reported aboard the Shangri La.

Rasmussen said he was feeling pretty fit but had lost 14 pounds.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 23 (AP)—Radioman Oliver B. Rasmussen, 23, Odanah, Wis., navy man who eluded Japs for 68 days after his plane crashed, enlisted in 1941, several months before Pearl Harbor. His mother, Mrs. Anna Lucas, lives at Waukegan, Ill.

Off to Greet Son

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Moore, 5807 Cornelia av., whose son, Maj. George B., 31, was captured by the Japanese on Bataan, left Chicago by United Air Lines Mainliner yesterday for San Francisco, Cal., where they expect to meet him tomorrow — their 33d wedding anniversary. Maj. Moore was a lieutenant colonel in the R. O. T. C. at Lane Technical High school, and entered the army as a private in 1937. He left the United States as an infantry officer in 1939. He was released from a Japanese prison camp Aug. 19, and is on his way home from Honolulu.

JAPS TURN OVER ASHES OF 2,600 YANK PRISONERS

TOKYO, Sept. 23 (AP)—Urns containing the ashes of 2,600 allied prisoners of war who died during imprisonment have been turned over by the Japanese government.

Col. Morris Marcus of San Francisco, of recovered personnel division, announced the figure today and said the urns of Americans will be sent to relatives, if desired. If left in Japan, they will be buried with full military honors.

"We went to prison camps and collected small urns containing the ashes," Col. Marcus said. "We found 700 in a camp between Tokyo and Yokohama, 1,200 in a temple near Osaka being taken care of by a priest and between 700 and 800 at Nagasaki, collected from 25 camps. So far, we have located no graves."

NATURE SPEAKS SAME TONGUE IN FLOWERY JAPAN

Even the Weeds Grow as They Do Here

BY HAROLD SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Sept. 23—The touch of nature may not make the average GI in the occupation force feel akin to the quaintly backward Japanese, but it does help relieve the homesickness of many months spent in the subtropics. The Tokyo climate, somewhat resembling that of the central United States, is hospitable to the same sort of vegetation which grows back home.

On a jeep tour this morning 25 miles from the heart of Tokyo, just beyond the rim of the burned out area, I noted dozens of trees, flowers, weeds, and vegetables apparently not different from the American varieties, and many others whose genera were easily identifiable despite slight differences.

Because Honshu Island has freezing winters most of its trees are deciduous, renewing their raiment each year, altho the landscape is spotted plentifully with the deeper shades of evergreens, notably large quantities of red pine and both red and white cedar. One conifer here closely resembles northern spruce, except for a less symmetrical disposition of the branches.

Twenty Varieties of Maple

The residents say the Tokyo area has 20 varieties of maple, of which four or five were encountered on today's expedition. All were soft maples, one variety having a leaf larger than the purple leaf maple and another covered with exquisitely small cut leaves. Weeping willows abound on the margins of rice paddies, and where the woodlands thicken in the suburban regions beeches, oaks, and birches intermingle curiously with such warm climate kinds as lemon, orange, fan palm, and papaya.

The war does not seem to have decimated Japan's famed cherry trees, but the mulberry, whose leaves in happier times were shredded for silkworm feeding, has become scarce because its space is needed for vegetables. Orchard trees frequently seen include the apple, plum, and chestnut, as well as a pear tree producing a brittle fleshed, apple shaped fruit.

Flowers Are Like Home

The geometric designs on the wild mountainsides give visual testimony of Nippon's frugal afforestation and reforestation practices which avoid a lumber famine.

This land also has many floral reminders of our homeland. The blues and purples of the morning glory currently dot the hedgerows. The satiny white of syringa and virginalis shines incongruously in the untidy yards of unpainted houses, and the tongues of red bush hibiscus lick at the traveler on the narrow highways.

Cosmos, zinnia, and gaillardia brighten tiny home garden plots. Numerous mutations of cock's comb and firebush splash the roadsides with deep crimson, heightening the autumn feeling imparted by the incipient bronze in the rice paddies.

Corn, Onions Plentiful

The growing season here must outlast that of the Chicago area. Fresh rows of sweet potato seedlings, radishes, and lettuce are starting in the little vegetable gardens seen even in downtown parkways, from which street car tracks lately have been torn. Well filled squashes hang from hedges or lie on rubble heaps, with gay, yellow blooms promising more till the freeze-up.

Green corn is still plentiful, and onions, eggplant, and red peppers are coming fresh picked from the fields. The bean and soya harvest is underway, and clusters of kaffir and mullet and barley are being hung to cure in smoky kitchens and rickety outbuildings. Taro roots are hidden by the broad leaves still gathering sunshine for them.

Waste areas have weeds, but not the scrupulously tended fields and gardens. Varieties which I recognized with a glow of old friendship today included the lowly pigweed, pesky bunch grass, bright eyed Wandering Jew, and pink lyred smartweed. We looked in vain for goldenrod, ragweed, and other banes to hay fever sufferers, who are conspicuously unobservable here.

15,000 WORKERS, PEASANTS CARRY PLEA TO OSMENA

He Promises to Consider Demands

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 23—Manila laborers and peasants from the rice growing provinces of central Luzon numbering 15,000 marched to Malacanan palace, residence of President Sergio Osmena, this afternoon to voice demands.

The paraders, old men and women as well as young people, walked all the way to the city to participate in the biggest parade since the liberation of Manila. The parade was under the auspices of the Democratic alliance, a newly organized political party, which counts among its thousands of members judges, lawyers, business men, newspaper men, labor leaders, laborers, peasants, communists, and radicals.

Carry Placards

The paraders carried numerous placards, bearing such slogans as, "Petain is a puppet, so is Laurel," "Root out the remnants of fascism," "Keep all collaborators in confinement," "Give Manuel Roxas back to the Japs," "Bring Roxas to trial in the people's court," "Rehabilitate the people and not the fascists," and "Confiscate all the properties of collaborafors."

Many of the paraders carried the red flag of communism with the hammer and sickle. They presented a petition to Osmena, demanding a minimum wage of $1.50 for laborers, free hospitalization of indigents, compulsory education, settlements of agrarian conflicts, speedy trial of collaborators now confined in the insular prison, general elections in the Philippines next November, and independence for the Philippines next July.

Suggestions Welcome

"I am happy to receive you all," Osmena responded, "and I am very eager to have your petition. Your suggestions are entirely welcome, and I promise to give them my most careful and sympathetic attention.

"You are aware of the precarious condition of our national economy and public finance. You realize that in order for us to solve our problems of relief and rehabilitation, we need all the resources we can muster in money as in materialism.

"Precisely because of this situation, I feel it is my duty to go again to the United States, as soon as my pressing official work here will permit. I am hopeful that in my negotiations with the United States authorities I shall have behind me the united and wholehearted support of our people."

DOOLITTLE MEN EXECUTED, JAP PROBERS ADMIT

Committee Says It Has Found Evidence

TOKYO, Sept. 23 (AP)—Evidence that some Doolittle raid flyers were executed and buried outside Japan has been uncovered by a Japanese war ministry committee investigating atrocities perpetrated on allied war prisoners, Lt. Gen. Tadaichi Wakamatsu, vice minister of war, disclosed today.

These facts and other war crimes are to be reported to the United States army as uncovered, said Maj. Gen. Masao Ueda, former chief of the army press section and spokesman for Gen. Wakamatsu.

The committee, headed by Wakamatsu includes 30 bureau heads of the war ministry and was established voluntarily by the Japanese government.

Three of the eight Doolittle flyers captured in China after the April, 1942, Tokyo raid, still are unaccounted for. All eight were sentenced to death by their captors, but in five cases the sentences were commuted to imprisonment.

Four of the flyers were found by an American rescue squad in a Peiping prisoner of war camp. The rescued men said one of their comrades died in prison, but they never saw the missing three after Oct. 14, 1942.

All Documents Burned

Premier Higashi-Kuni told a foreign press conference Sept. 18, when asked who ordered the executions, that "it was done in China," and he was not in a position to say by whom. The premier also disclaimed knowledge whether any Doolittle flyers were brought to Japan.

Ueda reported the reason for his former lack of information was that war ministry officials in 1942, the time of the Doolittle raid, were replaced subsequently and burned all their documents before leaving office. Some of these officials are still in Japan, but most are outside of the country, Ueda added.

In the war ministry files a copy of the newspaper Asahi for Oct. 20, 1942, contains a report of a verbal statement by the army press section chief of imperial headquarters which says:

"As a result of investigation of captured American pilots who raided Japan, April 18, 1942, those found to have ignored the principles of humanity have been severely dealt with in accord with military regulations."

Print Premier's Threat

The same issue of Asahi which has a picture of eight smiling captives standing in a row and another of a solitary captive being led blindfolded from a Japanese plane by two guards, printed the widely heralded threat by Prince Higashi-Kuni, then commander of home defense headquarters, in which he said:

"Enemy air pilots raiding Japanese territory and having been captured will be compelled to face courts martial and sentence to either death or heavy penalties if they have been found to have acted outrageously and outside the principles of humanity. This also applies to those raiding Manchuria and areas of other Japanese military operations who have been captured by the Japanese."

At his recent press conference the premier denied he gave any order for execution of flyers. He claimed he was in charge of defenses until a raiding plane was shot down, but "thereafter what happened was beyond my province."

JAP INDUSTRY'S COLLAPSE CITED AS LOSING WAR

TOKYO, Sept. 23 (AP)—The industrial collapse which began a year ago actually defeated Japan and the bombers only applied the finishing touches, an American officer said today.

Major factors of this collapse were the rapid breakdown of equipment in heavy industry, which had not been replaced since long before the war, and lack of suitable raw materials, said the officer, whose job it is to investigate Japan's war industry.

Another important contributing factor, the officer said, was the great shortage of man power. During the last year, the officer added, Japanese industry was creaking to a halt, and this was far more important than the aerial destruction of factories.

YANK PRISONERS SEE NO DAYLIGHT FOR TWO YEARS

SHANGHAI, China, Sept. 23 (AP)—Most American flyers who were shot down over Formosa were killed immediately by the Japanese when captured, but 11 were spared so they could be questioned, and survived months of sadistic cruelty.

This was reported today by Capt. Edward Jones of Providence, R. I., who headed the American army mission to Formosa and assisted in the liberation and repatriation of 1,278 American, British and Dutch prisoners of war.

Most of the prisoners were taken to Formosa from the Philippines, Hong Kong and Dutch East Indies. Hundreds were forced to work in a mine near Kagi from early morning until after dark, so that for two years they never saw daylight.

Live on Rice and Water

The eyes of many of these mine workers were affected. All of the prisoners suffered from malnutrition and beri beri as the result of a ration of only 250 grams of rice and one cup of water daily.

An undetermined number of flyers were shot down during the raids on Formosa which began last October. Except for the 11 found by the army mission, all had been killed by the Japanese. Torture of the type reserved by the Japanese for those who might have information was used on these 11 men.

"For three months they were wired against the bars of their cell while the Japs humiliated them in every way they could think of," said Capt. William Cook, Alexandria, La., another member of the army mission.

Not Listed as Prisoners

"They were wired by wrists and neck and given just enough slack to allow them to eat and sleep."

The 11 were held in a civil jail and not even listed as prisoners of war, the officer said.

The American mission went to Formosa in two groups. One group was joined by Navy Lt. John McClellan, Lansing, Mich., at Amoy. McClellan talked the local Japanese commander into furnishing him and Capt. Cook and Capt. John Sehan, Wheeling, W. Va., with a subchaser and crew for the trip to Kirun, Formosa.

This group made Formosa in 14 hours, out the second group led by Capt. Jones and including Capt. John White, Charleston, W. Va., a medical officer, ran into typhoons crossing from Foochow in a Chinese craft. They were lucky to reach Kirun in 12 days.

TWO CHICAGO MEN ARE RESCUED FROM JAP PRISON CAMPS

Lt. Frank C. Jonelis

Lt. Frank G. Jonelis, who was captured by the Japanese on Corregidor, was liberated from a prisoner of war camp on Shikoku Island, his mother, Mrs. Stella Jonelis Youchunas, of 2149 W. 22d pl., said yesterday.

Lt. Jonelis was serving with the coast artillery, 1st division, as a meteorologist. He was on the faculty of the University of Washington when he entered the army in 1939.

Pvt. James J. Lehner, 30, of the marine corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob J. Lehner, of 1317 N. Western av., has been liberated from a prisoner of war camp near Tokyo, his parents said yesterday.

He joined the marines in December, 1939, and was taken prisoner on Bataan. His last letter to his parents was written three years ago.

Britain to Protest If Spain Arrests Republican Chiefs

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin tonight informed a meeting at the Spanish Republican house that the British ambassador in Spain had been instructed to investigate the reported arrest of two Spanish Republican leaders, Santiago Alvarez and Sebastian Zapirain, and "if circumstances appear to warrant it, to make appropriate representations to the Spanish government."

BLIND GIRL'S WAR ROLE AS BRAILLE CENSOR IS TOLD

Work in Honolulu Wins Award by U. S.

HONOLULU, Sept. 23 (AP)—Now that all censorship has ceased here in Hawaii, Mrs. Helen Gray Nawaa can get a little of that rest she's been needing for some time.

While she's resting, she occasionally can slide her sensitive fingertips over a certificate of merit and smile softly with inner pride at its proof that she, too, did her share in the war.

It was awarded her by Byron Price, former director of censorship at Washington, D. C., in recognition of her "excellent service" as a censor in this vital Pacific territory. Its a mighty nice looking document and it's too bad she can't see it. But Helen Nawaa is blind.

Censors Letters in Braille

Ironically, it was that very blindness that made her invaluable to her country during the war, because since April, 1944, she has helped censor a thousand letters which passed thru the Honolulu postoffice—letters written in Braille to the blind.

Helen learned to read Braille long ago, but when the war broke out it didn't occur to her that such an ability might be needed.

"I was afraid at first that I wouldn't be much help to the war effort," she said.

But she practiced her typing and got a civilian job—as typist and proofreader in Braille for the territorial bureau of sight conservation. Then one day a year and a half ago she learned that the censors were looking for some one to read Braille correspondence.

"I volunteered gladly," she said.

Starts New System

Altho she didn't mention it, W. Alan Graves, Honolulu postal censor, pointed out that it was a nonpaying job which meant she had to keep her other job, too.

Then started a system strange in the annals of censorship. It was surprising how many soldiers, sailors, marines, and defense workers at Pearl Harbor, Hickam field, and elsewhere in the islands had blind relatives back home.

Postal censors were not being picayunish about watching the Braille letters. During the last war there were several instances when enemy agents sought to smuggle information thru regular mail channels by that method.

As soon as her day's work was done Helen would walk carefully over the familiar route to the federal building—or if censorship need was imperative, she simply postponed her own work and hurried to the postal censor's office.

Reads Letters Aloud

"I would read the Braille letters aloud to a sighted person who was the real censor," she explained. The censor would tell her what to eliminate.

"Most correspondence was sent by defense workers or by army and navy men to their blind wives, sisters, or girl friends," she recalled.

News of the work she was doing spread rapidly, and elsewhere thruout this part of the Pacific military censors—lacking trained Braille readers—routed their mail to Honolulu for "reading" by Mrs. Nawaa.

And for the first time since the war started many service men were able to write directly to loved ones. No longer did they have to be careful to write only things that could be read aloud by a third person when letters were received back home.

FREEDOM CAN'T BE HALTED, INDIA CONGRESS TOLD

Assail Moslem League at Party Convention

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 23 (AP)—Maulana A. K. Azad, Moslem president of the all-India party congress, told a party session today that India is nearer than ever to freedom and "our march toward nationhood cannot be halted."

Maulana A. K. Azad

Earlier the congress ratified an amendment sending it into the election campaigns this winter and next spring, altho Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and others criticized what they said were British restrictions on franchise.

The scholarly Azad said "the story of the last three years has become pages of history, and we have forged our national will in such a way that even the whole world cannot resist it."

Stormy Session Held

"The British government," he added, "thought that by arresting our leadership and removing them from the people they could extinguish the flames of liberty . . . but what has happened after that has proved they cannot be extinguished."

His speech climaxed a stormy session highlighted by Nehru's statement that the congress wanted "no truck" with the Moslem league headed by M. A. Jinnah, who has advocated a division of India.

The convention shouted protests at speakers who tried to modify the congress' attitude on this point.

Moslem Shouted Down

When Dr. Mohammed Ashraf, a Moslem delegate and one of the few communist delegates on the congress committee, arose to speak he was almost shouted down despite his use of the loud speaker system. Ashraf sought congress support for Moslems who wish to set up their own constitutional convention.

One of the congress' greatest tests is whether it can gather enough Moslem votes to nullify Jinnah's claim that his league speaks for the majority of his people. Nehru made it plain, however, that the congress would fight the issue strongly at the polls. "Every time we have gone to the Moslem league," he said, "we have received kicks."

Defend Jap Allies

Speaking Hindustani in clipped sentences which evoked roars from his 30,000 listeners, Nehru continued:

"Nobody doubts where the Moslem masses are. Let those who doubt where they are follow me into the villages. They will see that the poorest Moslem is with the congress."

Earlier, the congress condemned the government's treatment of the "national army," headed by Subhas Chandra Bose, which fought beside the Japanese.

The delegates greeted with approval the announcement that a legal committee had been appointed to defend officers and men of the army brought to trial on charges of fighting against the empire.

ELLIOTT'S LOAN DEALS TO FACE FURTHER STUDY

Full Report on Testimony Expected Today

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 (AP)—House Republicans today asserted they will "keep on investigating" Elliott Roosevelt's financial troubles.

Rep. Jenkins

G. O. P. spokesmen disclosed this plan to a reporter after reiterating that they regard as a whitewash the ways and means committee decision yesterday to refer one phase of the case to the house without further inquiry now.

"The matter is not going to be dropped," Rep. Jenkins [R., Ohio] said in an interview. "We want to know about these assorted bad debts."

Tax Bureau Investigates

He said the bureau of internal revenue is making additional investigations now and that Republicans will press for further data as soon as it becomes available.

Jenkins said one unanswered question is whether young Roosevelt should be charged 1942 income tax on $196,000—the unpaid portion of a $200,000 loan from John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company.

The ways and means committee voted, 14 to 10, yesterday to refer all testimony in the Hartford loan case to the house, where it will be made public tomorrow. Committee Democrats held that Hartford is entitled to a tax reduction on the $196,000 as a "bad debt" to Elliott. They did not consider the income tax as it pertains to the latter.

G. O. P. Cites "Conflicts"

The committee took no action regarding:

1. What Republicans called conflicts in testimony of Elliott, Hartford, and Jesse Jones, former commerce secretary, regarding the role of the late President Roosevelt in the case. Jones arranged the $4,000 settlement of the $200,000 loan.

2. Other loans made to Elliott for operation of the Texas State radio network. These include advances by Sid Richardson and Charles Roeser, Texas oil men who share ownership of the network. The committee read testimony that the two had been frequent guests at the White House.

The Republicans want more light on both these points. They declared in a minority report yesterday that Jones said the late President had asked him to help settle Elliott's financial troubles, but that Elliott took an opposite view.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Sept. 24—Victory at Monterrey

ON SEPT. 24, 1846, Pedro de Ampudia, Mexican commander at Monterrey, asked Gen. Zachary Taylor for an armistice. It was granted, and in the negotiations that followed it was agreed that the city should be surrendered to the Americans but that the Mexican troops, with their arms, should be allowed to leave unmolested.

This curious victory, which won a relatively valueless city but left an enemy army intact, followed a ferocious three day battle in which the Americans had stormed seemingly impregnable redoubts, fought their way thru narrow city streets against sniper fire, and paid a fearful price in blood and suffering for the gains they made.

With about 6,200 soldiers and no real siege ordnance except one 10 inch mortar, Taylor had attacked a fortified city garrisoned by more than 9,000 men. Only the heroism of the American troops made the successful issue of such a venture possible.

Taylor's easy armistice terms, which came in for much criticism in Washington, may have been due to his realization that he was deep in hostile territory with an army which was not well provisioned and in no condition to take all of Monterrey and its surrounding works by storm or siege.

Two of Taylor's subordinates at Monterrey were men who were to play major roles in the Civil war—Lt. Ulysses S. Grant, future commander of the Union armies, and Col. Jefferson Davis, Confederate president-to-be.

Crest of Job Layoffs Has Passed, McNutt Says

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 (AP)—War Man Power Commissioner McNutt said today the nation "is now well beyond the crest of job layoffs resulting from war contract cutbacks and cancellations." McNutt, in a broadcast over the Mutual system, reported that in the first four weeks following the Japanese surrender there were 2,500,000 layoffs. Since the first week when layoffs totaled 1,800,000, he said, the rate of release has been declining steadily.

REVEAL DUPING OF NAZIS BY U. S. RADIO KEY TRICK

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Sept. 23—With the end of censorship it is now possible to describe how the American army employed radio to mislead the Germans and shift divisions to points selected for attack without discovery by the Nazis.

Every radio Morse operator has certain characteristics in sending, exactly like every telegrapher, and an operator listening to another send can speedily recognize these characteristics.

During the dogged fighting along the Siegfried line last autumn Yank radio operators dispatching orders to various units in combat and listening in on nazi operators pounding keys behind German lines soon identified the signatures of the enemy and could tell when different units moved into a sector because the new operators had a different touch.

U. S. Operators Not Shifted

They reported this to officials and one bright major conceived a ruse, which Gen. Eisenhower adopted. He suggested that whenever any American combat division moved to a concentration point for an attack it leave its radio operators behind. They continued to pound out dummy messages night and day.

Thus, the listening Germans believed the division stayed in the same spot and did not know its real location until the attack was in progress and captured men disclosed its identity.

When armored divisions were moved up for the Roer, Rhine, Weser, and Elbe river attacks, they remained without radio communications until they actually went into combat.

Germans Admit Being Fooled

A captured German radio operator disclosed: "We constantly monitored all your armored and parachute units and certain other shock divisions, like the 1st, 84th, and 35th, because we knew that whenever they came into the line that meant an attack was coming. But sometimes while we were still listening to radio operators of these units sending messages on one sector, we got word from headquarters that the same division was launching an attack miles away on another part of the front. We never thought to try the same trick."

HEN LAYS EGGS WITH 3 YOLKS; OWNER PUZZLED

Elmer Keck, 10904 Avenue B, was wondering yesterday what to do with a New Hampshire Red hen which lays eggs with three yolks. He finally decided to let her keep on laying.

"I've been raising chickens for seven years," he said, "and this is the first time I've seen a hen lay an egg with three yolks."

Keck has no explanation for the phenomenon, altho he said maybe the hen does it to save time.

GAS CHAMBER SURVIVOR WILL TESTIFY TODAY

Second Week of Belsen Trial to Begin

LUENEBURG, Germany, Sept. 23 (AP)—A young woman who escaped the gas chamber death decreed for her at Oswiecim [Auschwitz] concentration camp will confront the 45 defendants charged with bestiality there and at Belsen as the British military court trial enters its second week tomorrow.

From the witness box, Sophia Litinska will add her testimony to the slowly accumulating evidence in a trial dramatized, not by recounting of prison horrors, but by the court's painstaking struggle to translate the terrorism into a record that meets the firm tests of an established code of justice.

There is nothing in fixed codes and procedures on which to base a broad charge of responsibility for the hideous sum of human misery and degradation that occurred in the concentration compounds.

The 45 persons on trial for their lives are fighting not as a group but as individuals charged jointly and severally with specific murders and mistreatment of individual citizens of the allied nations.

Fair Trial Is the Aim

And the court is seeing to it that the defendants receive a fair trial. Every process that would be at the disposal of a defendant before any British military tribunal is at their disposal here and is being used in their defense.

The prosecution's method is to break down Belsen's and Oswiecim's horrors into a charge that the defendants, as individuals and by concerted action, murdered certain allied nationals, deliberately withheld food and medical attention from others and tortured and mistreated still others.

The defense seeks to show that conditions in the camps as they were found by allied armies resulted from Germany's general collapse and were beyond the control of the camps' administrative personnel. Defense lawyers pounce on any opportunity to separate the individual defendants from the sweeping charges.

Judge Advocate Is Center

Joseph Kramer, "The Beast of Belsen," sits No. 1 in the prisoners' dock, but he is by no means the central figure in his own trial. Neither is hard-faced Irma Grese, described as the worst of SS women, themselves called worse than the camps' male overlords.

Day in and day out, the key figure of the trial is tall, angular, and graying C. L. Stirling, king's counsel and deputy judge advocate general—"the learned judge advocate" of the court. His position as an "independent member" of the court is peculiar to British and military judicial procedure. Altho not a judge, he sits on the judges bench as legal adviser to the entire court—judges, prosecution and defense—and decides all questions of law and rules in disputes over rules of evidence.

Robed in black, wearing the traditional tightly-curled gray wig and black-ribboned pince-nez glasses, this dry-voiced lawyer dominates the trial.

Laws and rules based on precedent are in almost constant collision with the trial's unprecedented situations. Every one concerned turns to Stirling for advice, which Court President Maj. Gen. H. P. M. Berney-Ficklin translates into the court's rulings.

LOSES PISTOL AND KNIFE

CONINGHAM, AIR COMMANDER IN GERMANY, HERE

Air Marshal Arthur Coningham, who was in command of England's tactical air forces in Germany during the war, fulfilled his wish to see Chicago last night. He arrived at Chicago airport in an army plane piloted by Col. L. W. Sweetser Jr., went to the Palmer House, then took in a night club show. Coningham, who was accompanied by R. A. F. Wing Comdr. A. deV. Leach, said he had told Gen. Arnold, at whose invitation he is touring the United States, that he would like to have a look at Chicago and the request was quickly granted. He will depart for New York today and return to England early next month.

HIGH POINT GIs FROM CHICAGO GRIPE AT DELAY

BY ANNE BRUYERE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Sept. 23—Disgusted high point Chicagoland GI's, some of whom have five battle stars and three children, protested furiously today against being pushed around from camp to camp, Gen. Marshall was in for severe and unanimous criticism because he had stated that enlisted men at home would be released before overseas personnel with much longer service records.

Seventy four pointed, 37 year old James A. Moneely, 2122 N. Larabee st., Chicago, has been pulled in and out of Camp New Orleans [a redeployment camp] six times and sees no chance of getting home to his wife, Norma, and his children, Donald, Jean, and Doris.

"Those who have the highest points should get out first, irrespective of their location," he insisted. "It's logical that the boys who spent the war scrambling into foxholes to save their lives should get a break."

Basic Training Again

Thirty six year old high pointers Fred Ecklund, 631 W. 61st st., Paul Pomilia, 2014 McLean av., and Leo Rubenstein, 3505 W. Adams st., all of Chicago, were supposed to have been discharged because of their age but so far they have just been put thru basic training again.

"What for?" groaned Rubenstein. "Nobody understands it. There is an intense spirit of rebellion in all the camps. For one, I have been transfered 17 times. It's a hell of a peace."

Eighty one pointer William White, Galesburg, Ill., has five battle stars.

"I was scheduled to go home last July but they've got me shooting an old army rifle again," he complained bitterly. What can a fellow do?"

Officers Throw Parties

Sgt. John Walter Lechowicz, 831 N. Richmond st., Chicago, who has been overseas 25 months, has five battle stars and 79 points; Earl M. Hora, 2721 N. Maplewood av., Chicago, with 71 points; and Sgt. Albin E. Roszyk, 8833 Muskegon av., Chicago, said they knew hundreds of Illinois Yanks with over 90 points who were classed as essentials and brought back from Germany as of V-E day to dig outdoor latrines for German prisoners of war. The rest of the time they drill while their superior officers throw private parties in chateaus and ride around in Packards.

"We all feel," said Hora, "that the officers like to keep us over here so they can go on having a good time. We were deeply hurt to read about a certain colonel who got ship space to send over his horses.

Cite General's Auto

"And a general of the Timber Wolf division [104th] was able to send home his Lincoln-Zephyr car but we GI's have to sweat it out because there is no transportation."

The GI's also complained that mail has stopped in the last three months. Two hundred and forty eight signal operators averaging 79 points each are in Camp Boston without any news from home because letters are being forwarded month after month to Camp Shanks.

The only happy Chicagolander is 88 pointer Corp. Joseph H. Drysch Jr., Des Plaines, Ill., who is leaving tonight for Le Havre to sail for home.

"Everybody should return," he grinned. "The GI's have absolutely nothing to do in France."

PARKED AUTO STOLEN

August A. Keslinke, 6942 Ada st., told police that his automobile was stolen yesterday from 62d and Green sts.

RELIGION CLASS ATTENDANCE UP FOLLOWING SUIT

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 23 [Special]—An increase in attendance at religious education classes in the Champaign public schools, as compared with last year, was reported today by Miss Mae Chapin, director of religious education.

Miss Chapin said 770 pupils in the graded and junior high schools already have enrolled for the classes and filed written permission from their parents for attendance. Last year the enrollment was 755. This amounted to about 80 per cent of those eligible in the graded schools and 20 per cent of those eligible in the junior high schools.

Publicity given the religious education plan by the trial two weeks ago of the mandamus suit brought by Mrs. Vashti McCollum in an effort to ban religious teaching in public schools is thought responsible for the increase in the popularity of the classes, Miss Chapin indicated. Classes are conducted for half hour periods each week by ministers and laymen of the Catholic, Jewish, and Protestant faiths.

A lower court decision in Mrs. McCollum's suit has been scheduled for Nov. 29, with briefs to be filed by attorneys Oct. 29.

RUSSIA RESENTS CHARGE IT SPLIT BIG FIVE PARLEY

Pravda Says Barriers Can Be Conquered

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP)—With hope vanishing for any substantial agreement on European peace settlements at this session of the Big Five foreign ministers, a Russian commentator today rebuked those who blame the soviet for divisions in the ministers' council.

A reviewer in Moscow's Pravda, naming the British press in particular, said "the pessimists not only engage in gloomy prophesies, but try to blame the soviet union for a rise of difficulties.

The commentator said the experience of collaboration gained by the great powers during the war "gives every ground for conviction that insurmountable difficulties do not exist." To British editorial comment on soviet interests in the future of the Mediterranean this rejoinder was offered:

"Not a single geography textbook indicates that the Mediterranean is a British sea, or that the Italian colonies are British territory."

Expect Windup Thursday

The Big Five council will begin its third week of deliberations tomorrow on such subjects as control of European inland waterways, extension of the Austrian government and removal of British and Russian troops from Iran.

This leaves in the background the conflicting series of major issues—the Balkan peace pacts, the Italian colonial possesions and the frontier dispute between Italy and Yugoslavia.

Belief grew in diplomatic quarters that the Big Five would bring the session to a close before Thursday.

On the credit side for the 11 days of official meetings was a reported agreement between Russia and Great Britain on the Finnish peace pact.

The Italo-Yugoslav frontier dispute, with Trieste the prize at stake, and the future of the Italian colonies, have been handed over to the ministers' deputies for consideration.

Hungary Treaty Shelved

Still undecided are the Romanian and the Bulgarian peace pacts. The question of drafting a treaty for Hungary was shelved over the weekend.

Conflicting proposals for Big Four control of Europe's inland waterways are before the council, as well as a soviet proposal for extending operation of Austria's Renner regime, now restricted to the soviet zone, to the entire country.

Other issues which the Big Five must take up at the current session, or in December when they meet again to receive recommendations from their deputies, include the paramount question of the Dardanelles.

STARTS PITTSBURGH TO CHICAGO HIKE; IS DUE HERE ON OCT. 2

A. F. Bergman

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 23 (AP)—A. F. Bergman, 58, a steel worker, started on a 500 mile walk to Chicago today—a mere tuneup for a contemplated 3,000 mile foot trip to the coast.

A battered red walking stick his only luggage, Bergman left downtown Pittsburgh at 2:30 p. m. Averaging 50 miles a day, he figures to be in Chicago by noon Oct. 2.

Bergman, an ex-barber, plans to walk about 10 hours a day. Stopovers will be at Norwalk, Akron, Bowling Green, and Defiance, all in Ohio, and Kendallville, Elkhart, and Michigan City, Ind.

This trip is just a warmup for the transcontinental walk he is planning next summer. The muscular little steelworker said the late Edward Payson Weston set the coast-to-coast walking record of 75 days but that "I know I can do it with ease in 60 days."

BRITAIN TO PUT SEEING EYE DOG IN QUARANTINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 23—When Mary Mansfield, 33, blind Colorado Springs [Colo.] girl who is going to wed a blind British war plant inspector, steps ashore at Southampton early this week from the Danish motorship Jutlandia, she will be parted from her closest companion of nearly four years. The companion is her Alsatian Seeing Eye dog, Arta.

British quarantine laws require dogs to be locked up six months to prove they have no contagious disease, and tonight it was indicated no exception will be made in Miss Mansfield's case. The British blind organization may be able to provide a guide dog soon, it was said.

Her fiance, Christopher Harry Marson of North Hill, Bedfordshire, is en route to Southampton to meet her for the first time. Their romance began 10 years ago, when he contributed an article to the Braille magazine.

PLAN RECEPTION IN NEW USO CLUB AT LAKE FOREST

An open house will be held Thursday evening in the new U. S. The building, which was completely refurnished, now includes game, reception, reading, and music rooms for uniformed women. Directors of the club expect that the kitchen will be the most popular room.

DON'T GIVE ITALY STOLEN LANDS, SELASSIE ASKS

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Sept. 23 [Reuters]—Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia, in an interview here, stressed his country's claims to the former Italian colonial territories of Eritrea and Somaliland, which, he said, must not be returned to Italy. He deplored the exclusion of Ethiopia from the five power conference in London at which the peace treaty with Italy is being discussed.

Haile Selassie

Lost Access to Sea

"The Ethiopian viewpoint regarding Eritrea and Somaliland has already been formulated in a memorandum addressed to the five power conference, claiming the return of these territories not as a recompense for 10 years' struggle against the axis but as territories incontestably belonging to th Ethiopian empire since before the Christian era and stolen thru Italian aggression," he said.

He said seizure of those territories by Italy in the closing years of the last century deprived Ethiopia of access to the sea and enabled Italy to launch unprovoked aggression against Ethiopia in 1935.

"We considered the loss of these territories so serious that we made an extensive voyage in Europe in 1924 to remedy the situation," the emperor added.

Agree with Eden

Of other former Italian territories in Africa, he said:

"We associate ourselves entirely with, and accept as a guiding principle, the statement made this time last year by Anthony Eden [former British foreign secretary] that these territories must never be returned to Italy."

Ethiopia twice had asked to be represented at the foreign ministers' talks in London.

SEEKS TO SEIZE REICH ASSETS IN NEUTRAL LANDS

WIESBADEN, Germany, Sept. 23 (AP)—The United States, in a move designed to destroy potential roots of fascism overseas and to provide a possible source of reparations, has drafted a plan whereby the allied control council would claim all German assets in neutral countries, a responsible source said today.

Coöperation of Argentina, Sweden and Switzerland already has been established, but allied investigators have found difficulty in tracing ownership of the assets. In many instances the Germans tried to camouflage their connections with overseas firms thru dummy corporations or sympathetic agents.

German assets in Latin America alone amount to millions of dollars. Seized records of I. G. Farben revealed that this international combine listed its recorded assets there at not lower than 34,163,000 reichsmarks [a pre-war value of $13,240,000] as of Dec. 31, 1943.

Two Ethiopian Princes Go to School in Scotland

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 23—Prince Haile Selassie, 14, son of the emperor of Ethiopia, and Prince Alexander Desta, 10, a grandson, now are students at the Dollar academy in Scotland. The school principal says no special facilities domestically or educationally have been granted the boys as the Ethiopian legation wants them to "have a normal life in schooling and the experiences of all other students."

OUR ARMY IN GERMANY

The news from Berlin that Gen. Eisenhower hopes for a rapid reduction in the size of the American army of occupation in Germany is welcome, of course. Present plans call for something less than 400,000 American soldiers in Germany by next spring. Responsible officials say they would like to leave no more than a token force of a few thousand in Germany by the spring of 1947.

This may be regarded as a first dividend derived by the American people from Gen. MacArthur's recent announcement that his army of occupation can safely be cut to 200,000 in six months. The general's estimate aroused the fury of all the swivel chair sadists in Washington. They wanted needlessly big and oppressive armies of occupation for years to come in order to cause suffering not only in the vanquished nations, but also among the hundreds of thousands of American young men assigned to a distasteful and time wasting job.

The plan was contrary to American instincts and traditions, but it might have succeeded if Gen. MacArthur had lacked the courage and the statesmanship to state the actual military requirements. It is a striking and reassuring fact that our military men, remorseless as they are in war, take no pleasure in cruelty for its own sake. Thanks largely to them, the sadists in the administration are losing out and the policies favored by men of decent instincts are rapidly gaining favor.

The announcement from Germany, while welcome in the main, contained one disturbing note. The statement was made that American plans to reduce our forces in Germany are contingent upon parallel action by our allies. If the Russians, the English, or the French decide to keep big armies in Germany, we must do so also, it was intimated.

But why? Why must our behavior be as stupid, as cruel, or as venal as that of the stupidest, cruelest, or most venal among our allies? If we can't by reason persuade our allies to remove their armies of occupation when the need for such forces is past, we surely can't persuade them to do so by remaining in force ourselves. If it becomes our policy to stay in Germany as long as anybody else does, we may not get our army home for years to come and we must then expect to find ourselves unwilling partners in a program which the American people disapproves.

THE SPONGING EMPIRE

The Press association, a British news gathering agency, recently circulated to newspapers in the dominions a dispatch from a London correspondent asserting that Americans are doing their best to estrange themselves from the British.

"At various times," said this correspondent, "British patience has been strained by the raucousness of American comment, and the present American discussions of lend-lease, involving opposition to granting Britain aid, do not endear the United States to the British."

Americans, in short, are bounders. Colonials, of course, are also bounders, but the Press association, which, like newspapers thruout the empire, is an organ of the British foreign office, undertakes to lead them to more gentlemanly ways by pointing us out as horrible examples. Britain may still deign to accept our money, but it will be impossible for the British to regard us hereafter as gentlemen. The time will come when the dominions will be expected to dig down, also, to help Britain achieve its socialist Utopia, and their people are being placed on notice that it distinctly isn't cricket for the donor to ask the sponger what he intends to do with the dough.

Some of the things that Britain expects to do are outlined in another dispatch from London. The admiralty is going ahead with the construction of at least 107 warships, the London Express reports. They comprise a battleship, 16 carriers including a duplicate of our 45,000 ton super-carriers, 10 cruisers, and about 80 destroyers. The Economist of London asserted, as of three weeks ago, that four out of five British war workers were still making munitions. Yet Halifax and Keynes are preparing to assure our government that Britain is so impoverished that it cannot survive unless we put it on the WPA to the tune of several billions a year.

The fact that fleet building and munitions manufacture do not directly consume foreign exchange, the lack of which is the principal reason advanced by the British why we should support them, is immaterial. The British, in their own words, must export or die. They can't export battleships or shells, but the labor and materials diverted to such production could give them exportable products.

The truth is that the ruling caste in Britain retains all its imperial ambitions, but lacks the money or power to maintain them. Hence America is to be shamed into putting up the money to keep Britannia mistress of the seas. Next thing we know, they'll be asking for Halsey's fleet.

FRATE AND FRATER

Half a dozen people have written to us in recent weeks to ask if we don't know how to spell the stuff that is carried in the holds of ships. The answer is that we didn't until quite recently, but we do now. The correct spelling is frate.

One of these days we are going to write a piece on frate reights that will be an eye opener, especially to the proofroom. Meanwhile we shall content ourselves with observing that frate is carried in fraters. We have been told that frater is also a Latin word, but so is do. Has anybody suggested that the English word do be spelled some other way to make sure that nobody reading it in a sentence will think the writer has suddenly shifted to Latin?

Well, that's that. Every so often something happens to bring the absurdity of English spelling freshly to mind and then we try to do something about it. Once we introduced about a hundred simplifications over a period of a few months and stuck with almost all of them for quite a while. Some of them met with public approval, as best we could judge it, and those we kept and still keep. Nobody fusses any more about altho, thru, and kindred improvements. They are here to stay.

Now we're giving frate and frater a tryout. We are beginning to see evidence that these new spellings are catching on. At any rate, we'll give these two boys a fair chance to show what they've got by way of eye appeal. We thought for a time of letting Mr. Collins' poets continue to freight their hearts with woe or other cargo, but resolved against it. It would be more than the proofroom could bear.

THE PRICE OF HOUSES

Price Administrator Bowles in a statement Wednesday said that he would ask congress to pass a law giving him the power to set ceiling prices on old houses, newly built homes, and vacant home sites. By his past performance Mr. Bowles has so richly earned the right to be retired that it didn't seem possible that he could add anything significant along that line. But he has rung the bell, just as William H. Davis of the office of economic stabilization did with his moronic statement about wages which finally led President Truman to throw him out, disavowing his theories, and abolish his job.

It's beyond belief that any public official could be so witless as to ask for the power to fix the price at which every house and every vacant lot in this country can be sold. OPA made no great success of the relatively easy job of fixing the prices of eggs, milk, and beans—homogeneous things sold every day in the market, with the cost of production determinable. With rents it did nothing more than to freeze rates already written into leases, perpetuating any inequalities that may have existed.

With houses and lots there are no leases and no markets in which there are continuous transactions, hence no established prices. Houses are all different. The great majority have never been sold. Two houses exactly alike, built at the same time, may vary greatly. One may have been well maintained and the other not. One may have been the subject of abuse, while the other may be as good as when the first family moved in. One owner may have installed new plumbing and lighting fixtures, while the other didn't. Government, on a scale which could determine how much might be allowed for these differences, how much for variations in design, how much for wear and tear, would bankrupt us.

One man bought a vacant lot in 1926 and has paid taxes on it for 19 years. Never until now has it been possible for him to sell his property for what he paid for it. Is Bowles going to have the power to say that it is inflationary for him to sell for enough to get his money back?

Bowles is a great one for scare talk. He tells congress there must be action along these lines if "we are to avoid a serious inflationary boom in this field." He has no confidence in the automatic controls for checking price rises which exist in our economic system. There is a vast capacity for turning out building materials which has not been fully employed for 20 years. Desirable home sites are available in almost every community. If some people want homes so urgently that they will pay any amount they will live to regret it, for any increases in price will stimulate production and limit demand. The building industry has had enough experience to know that high prices automatically would cut off its market.

Bowles either forgets or he never knew that the inflationary overbuilding he talks about was not the immediate sequel to the housing shortage after the last war. Because of the foreign demand for American building materials, financed with American money, their prices went up in 1919 and 1920, but the American people were unwilling to pay the increased prices. Building revival on a vast scale did not come until the foreign loans had been cut off and the prices had receded. The residential building boom, with 600,000 to 900,000 homes a year being built, did not come until 1922.

The free economy has an automatic check upon inflation. Government can help this mechanism work by reducing expenditures for war activities promptly. Winding up of OWI and OES were moves in the right direction. Discontinuance of OPA with its large pay rolls would do even more to prevent inflation.

THE UNITED STATES A DEBTOR
[Wall Street Journal]

Many months ago this newspaper concluded and said that, contrary to widespread belief, the United States was no longer "the greatest creditor nation" and predicted that it would come out of World War II. in the debtor position. A pamphlet of the Brookings Institution, Washington, D. C., "Debtor and Creditor Countries: 1938, 1944," being a portion of a forthcoming book on the subject by Cleona Lewis, likewise finds that this country is debtor to the world.

The author estimates our net long-term foreign investments as of September, 1944, at 4.4 billion dollars and our net short-term obligations as of the same date at 5.6 billion dollars, leaving us a net debtor on both accounts at that time to the extent of 1.2 billion dollars. What changes have taken place in the international accounts during the past year this study does not undertake to say. The probability is that our net debt on all accounts [excluding lend-lease balances as already practically canceled] has increased.

THE ATOMIC LANGUAGE

This column regrets to report that the word "nuclear," now in fashion among atomic researchers, is derived from the Latin nux, nucis, meaning a nut.

* * *

"Fission," which has been adopted by the atom-crackers as a polite term for their terrifying hobby, was formerly used by scientists to describe the peculiar sex life of the amoeba, a familiar character of the microscopic world. When wishing to become a parent, the amoeba slowly and carefully splits itself into two amoebae. "Reproduction by fission," the biology professors used to tell their laboratory classes. Atomic fission, however, is highly unfavorable to the reproduction of the species of mammal called Homo Sapiens.

* * *

"Chain reaction" is the comforting technical expression for what happens when the exploding atom touches off its neighbor. The Chinese seem to have invented the idea for the celebration of New Year's day and the dedication of chop suey restaurants. They wove the fuses of firecrackers together and thus formed streamers and carpets that would pop for half an hour in loud but harmless chain reactions.

* * *

The "shell" of an atom is its imaginary outer covering or husk, believed to be composed of electrons. There are seven kinds of "shells" in the atomic family of 92 elements, named, respectively, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q. The Q shell is the weakest and, therefore, most crackable. We are happy to announce that it is carried by only five atoms, which are those of radium, actinium, thorium, proactinium, and uranium, and that these elements are rarer than hen's teeth.

ONE OF EVERYTHING, PLEASE!

Across the wilds of the Olive Drab,
Over jungles of Khaki and Tan,
The mating cry of the Foulard Tie
Calls out to the Service Man.

Out of the depths of the Combat Boot
And its heavy, humid dews
Comes the Lorelei voice of the Footwear of Choice:
Those lissome Civilian Shoes.

O hark to the cry of the Gabardines
And the song of the Herringbone Tweed
From the placid green dell where the Tie-clasps dwell
And the Bold-striped Ankle Socks feed.

Lift your tired eyes to the mountains beyond
Where the Palm Beach Suits are at;
Gaze till it hurts at the Linen Shirts
In their natural habitat.

What visions are these to make happy the eyes
Of the homeward bound Service Man,
As his way he jabs thru the Olive Drabs
And the jungles of Khaki and Tan!

The Red Man Slept Here

There are many places along Chicago's north shore which have been authenticated as burial grounds of the first Americans. One of the first to be discovered was on the property of Dr. Robert L. Sheppard on Greenwood blvd. near Lake Shore dr., in Evanston [now Gen. Dawes' home]. Aldin J. Grover, in laying the foundation for a hall on the campus of Northwestern university in 1866, unearthed Indian bones. In the excavation for the foundation for the Rood building, 701-03 Davis st., a communal grave was discovered, the bodies arranged in the form of a circle with the feet to the center.

Another extensive burial ground was just north of the Evanston hospital, extending from Ridge av. to the lake. The last burial in this cemetery is described by Frances Willard in "The Classic Town." Clyde D. Foster

THE WAY HOME

Along the peaceful way I came.
The day, fast slipping into night,
Had left the sunset skies alight
With mingled gold and crimson flame;
Soft shadows blurred the long gray road
Across the fading landscape flung,
And where the tall church steeple showed,
The new moon's silver crescent hung;

I breathed the scented airs that blew
From dew-fresh meadows stretching far;
I saw a cloud unveil a star
Above the friendly hills I knew;
Then came the knowledge, swift and clear
As message winged across the gloam,
That all the best of life was here,
Among the still, sweet fields of home!

BEGIN POSTURE TRAINING IN CHILDHOOD

It has been estimated that 75 per cent of the people of the United States have faulty posture. It is natural for children to stand with the abdomen protruding and the body slumped forward. As a rule, there is a marked arch in the spine and the chest is flattened. This situation may continue until adolescence and, after that, must be considered abnormal.

With growth and development, there is a tendency toward improvement, especially if the boy or girl is athletically inclined. Unfortunately, in all too many, no sensible type of correction is attempted. Mother may say time and again, "Straighten up, Mary." The child responds to the command but soon thereafter the shoulders droop and the spine assumes its regular undulations.

Among the causes we may consider fatigue associated with lack of muscle tone. This combination may follow an acute or a protracted illness and the typical victim is the undernourished, jittery youngster who does not enjoy sports. But even in healthy children, slouching may be observed. Altho the energy of our young fry seems boundless there is usually a letdown, particularly by nightfall. This may be more noticeable after sitting for long hours at a school desk.

Improper furniture and clothing often play a part and sagging beds or too many pillows should be considered. Enlarged tonsils and adenoids may obstruct nasal breathing to the point where chest development is interferred with.

We can understand how the additional strain placed on the muscular system will aggravate physical exhaustion, thus producing a vicious cycle. Some instances of pain in the back, thighs, calves, or feet may be blamed on poor posture.

In the adult, the result is often a "bay-window" which is far from inviting. Here it may not be indicative of obesity as overstretching of the muscles is frequently responsible. In subjects presenting this contour, attention to posture often reduces the bulge. There is little doubt that a good "stance" aids poise, increases height, and creates a sturdy and impressive appearance.

Training should start in childhood. A healthful atmosphere, with plenty of nourishing food, an abundance of fresh air and sunshine, and sufficient rest will aid well being. Careful postural checkups should be the rule, along with the procedures necessary to remedy the disorder.

Special classes have proved successful in schools and the child should be made conscious of any defect and taught the advantages of rectifying it. Sometimes dancing lessons will prove effective. Only by making erectness a habit can the process become effortless and subconscious. In the Chelsea survey, those who received instructions in how to sit, walk, and stand were in a better state of nutrition and encountered fewer illnesses.

[Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on posture.]

OTHERWISE HANDLED

Mrs. K. writes: What becomes of the gall, which is ordinarily stored in the gall bladder, after that organ has been removed?

REPLY

The functions of the gall bladder are the concentration and the storage of bile. After the sac is removed, the substance flows from the liver directly into the intestine, in a rather dilute state. Ultimately, the duct leading from the liver takes over the work of the non-existent gall pouch.

NAVEL DISCHARGE

Mrs. I. writes: What makes a navel run?

REPLY

Because of its anatomical formation, the umbilicus is, susceptible to infection. Furthermore, the secretions produced in this area, added to the accumulation of powder, lint, etc. furnish and excellent environment for the growth of organisms. A discharge in this region should not be neglected.

INSECT POWDER

Mrs. R. writes: I am thinking of spraying my kitchen and bedroom with D. D. T., but I've heard the chemical may be detrimental to health. Is there danger?

REPLY

There may be, should a sufficient amount be taken into the mouth accidently. Why not cover the food and then spray or apply with a paint brush?

WHITEHEAD

P. C. writes: What causes whiteheads?

REPLY

This lesion, known as a "milium," is due to retained secretions from the oil glands of the skin.

Assignment in Chinese

The monks of the monastery of Thélème, inspired in studies especially affecting human relations by our great founder, François Rabelais, would like to have your atomic mentality pierce the secret of yin and yang; the Chinese way of life to achieve harmony and happiness.

Webster says the yang is "male, positive, bright, and beneficent," whereas the yin is "female, negative, dark, and evil."

Lin Yutang, in "The Importance of Living" [page 19], says: "This spirit, like all life in the entire universe, is produced by the union of the male, active, positive or yang principle, and the female, passive, negative or yin principle—which is really no more than a lucky, shrewd guess at positive and negative principle."

But all this is most confusing to us and many others. Therefore we pray that you explain.

In vino veritas,

THEY'RE STILL LONESOME

IN THE PACIFIC, Sept. 8—Every day we hear news of different units and ships that are to leave for home and others who have already gone. It seems to be our luck to be the ones to stay behind to serve in peace as we served in war, far from home.

Of late we have received less and less cheerful mail from our friends and relatives. What has happened to the people back home? Do they think that now the war is over that the monotony of life for the men here has ceased? It is even worse now than it was in the past. All we have to look forward to is waiting and waiting some more. We understand that some one has to stay and that is the least of our worries, but a little mail would make life a lot happier and make time pass faster.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS

Spartanburg, S. C., Sept. 7—With the use of the radio, press, and platform Philip Murray and associates in the CIO have made their position clear. No reduction in wage scale but an increase. Less hours of work. No increase in the cost of living. A very desirous condition, if possible.

It is time for Mr. Murray and associates to demonstrate how this can be accomplished. Using some of the millions of idle dollars in their treasury they should buy one or more of the manufacturing plants the government has for sale. By operating same they can demonstrate to the public how they can pay increased wages, work shorter hours and sell the product at ceiling prices, and make a fair profit for their union. S. 75 CENTS AN HOUR

Harvey, Ill., Sept. 19—I'm writing this hoping your correspondent, M. C. Coats, reads it. Being an employer, he wouldn't know how to live on 75 cents an hour. Yet he gets mad because people won't work for that amount. What does he think this is—the old country where people work for nothing? If Mr. Coats were offered that pay, would he take it? Why, of course, he would be insulted, wouldn't he?

So, if the job is so easy, why don't you try to hire a boy or girl for that amount? Or, better yet, do it yourself and save the money and get rich quicker so you can retire sooner. Then you can really laugh at us poor working people. FRANK PUGLISE

SOLDIERS AND THE TRIBUNE

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 17—I'd like to take exception with the statement made by a reader, that there weren't 500 service men who read THE TRIBUNE. I was on duty in an army hospital where it was all but impossible to purchase a copy; they were sold out 10 minutes after delivery!

I'd also like to ask why it was when F. D. R. went around the country calling names, no one suggested that he was conducting a smear campaign; but let a word be said against him, and it's political propaganda! After all, he insisted again and again and again that he was "our commander in chief" long before Pearl Harbor . . . he assumed duties not legally his . . . he never bothered to ask congress for permission to do things he really wanted to do . . . he managed to railroad his pet bills thru congress, and if he didn't get approval, he did as he pleased anyway . . . so there was nothing to stop him from taking proper precautions to protect us. OLD DEALER

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 16—I just have to take a crack at that crack about there not being 500 men in the army who would side with THE TRIBUNE on the American policies which it so ably represents. Having worked and practically lived in several army camps such as Camp Atterbury, Ind., for nearly two years, I offer this observation:

Consistently, THE TRIBUNE outsells the leading oppositionist [or internationalist] paper by something like three or four to one. I've seen stacks of the pro-British sheet still waiting for customers long after the much larger supply of TRIBUNES were sold. I have seen this in officers' mess halls as well as in the PX cafeterias where privates and noncoms make up the bulk of the business. A. A. KINGMON

STRIKE THREAT AGAINST BIG 3 IN DETROIT GROWS

First Vote Returns Point to Chrysler Tieup

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 23 [Special]—Preliminary steps toward strikes involving the big three of the nation's automobile industry—General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler—moved swiftly ahead today to darken the Detroit reconversion picture despite prospects for an early settlement of the pivotal Kelsey-Hayes dispute.

Percy Llewellyn, an administrator appointed by the CIO United Automobile Workers for the Kelsey-Hayes local, announced he expected success early this week in his efforts to get 4,500 workers back on the job. This strike, which tied up the supplying of wheels to the Ford Motor company, led to suspension of all Ford production 10 days ago.

Early returns from voting by Chrysler employes on the question of petitioning for a federally supervised strike vote indicated that Chrysler workers are overwhelmingly in favor of a strike, CIO officials said. Ten Chrysler locals were taking such votes here today, and similar meetings were in progress thruout the nation among Chrysler's 120,000 employes.

Unanimous Vote Reported

Joe Rubin, CIO spokesman, said one union voted unanimously for a strike vote, and that a second was almost unanimous.

Richard T. Leonard, UAW vice president in charge of the union's Ford division, said the national Ford department of the union will meet in Detroit Sept. 29 and 30 to decide on a strike vote. This meeting will draw about 100 delegates who will act on behalf of the Ford company's 150,000 employes.

Leonard said that 2,000 members of local 600, UAW-CIO, meeting here yesterday, voted unanimously in favor of petitioning for a strike vote.

"Cooling Off" Begins

As a result of the petition filed yesterday by the UAW for a strike vote of the 325,000 employes of General Motors, the 30 day "cooling off" period prescribed by federal law began running today. Unless an agreement between the union and the company is reached during this period, a vote will be conducted Oct. 24 by the national labor relations board.

The UAW demand on General Motors is for a 30 per cent wage increase, a social security system, and rules governing permanent and temporary transfers of employes. Similar demands have been made by the union against Ford and Chrysler.

Workers Told to Return

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 23 [Special]—Notices posted at headquarters of the Nash-Kelvinator United Auto Workers [CIO] local here today emphasized the "necessity" of every worker who was employed on Wednesday returning to work Monday morning.

The strike began when 300 maintenance division workers reported but refused to work as a protest to delays in action on their wage increase petition. The rest of the union joined them at the end of the shift, with approximately 2,600 men out.

Negotiations between management and the union were resumed Friday, after which the order was issued to the men to return to their jobs while the conferences continue.

FOSTER BEACH CLOSED; HUNT FOR EXPLOSIVES

Foster av. beach was closed to bathers yesterday while army ordnance experts and park police searched for explosives which they believed might still be buried in the sand after the mock landing by marines at the beach Sept. 8.

Jerry Latin, 14, of 4428 N. Racine av., and Robert Geib, 11, of 4419 Magnolia av., who found a block of explosive equal to three pounds of TNT Saturday, assisted Detective Marshall Pidgeon of the police bomb detail in the search.

The explosive, a compound known as C-2, was stored on the beach at the time of the landing. Two weeks ago police found three north side boys with black powder bombs and blocks of TNT which experts said could have blown up an apartment building.

WEEK'S SUPPLY OF GAS LEFT AS STRIKE GOES ON

Oil Firms, Union to Confer Tomorrow

Gasoline supplies for Chicago motorists seemed certain to last until the end of this week as the strike of the Oil Workers' International union [CIO] entered its second week this morning. Hopes for a supply after this week were being pinned on a joint conference here tomorrow called by the federal government.

As a prelude to tomorrow's talks between representatives of major oil firms whose plants have been closed across the nation and leaders of the CIO oil workers, the union's newly formed national wage policy making committee will meet here this morning.

The committee consists of one official and one rank and file member from each of the union's seven districts in addition to O. A. Knight of Fort Worth, Tex., international president of the union, and three of his officers. The union's executive committee will also meet.

Few Stations Close for Day

Chicago filling station operators reported yesterday's demand for gasoline ranged from normal to three times normal volume. Most dealers said they had no trouble in getting bulk deliveries, altho a few stations reported they closed yesterday to conserve gasoline for regular customers today.

The Chicago supply is coming from reserves stored in bulk stations thruout the city, and the OWIU has refrained from throwing picket lines around them—an action which has brought critical shortages to Detroit, Mich., Cleveland, Toledo, O., and other cities.

The absence of pickets and the flow of Chicago's gasoline were explained as a "professional courtesy" to the AFL truck drivers who deliver the bulk of the city's supply. The drivers are negotiating a new contract calling for a 48 hour week and a 30 per cent raise with the oil firms, and asked CIO cooperation in allowing them to comply with their contract by not placing picket lines.

Mayors to Meet Today

State Sen. Charles Fleming of the 1st Indiana district, a labor leader, postponed a conference of eight Indiana mayors until today.

A Shell Oil company refinery in Pasadena, Cal., was closed yesterday and three more oil refineries and a related plant on the Texas gulf coast joined the 10 already strikebound in that area.

The striking oil workers are seeking 52 hours' pay for 40 hours' work to offset a reduction when a 40 hour work week is substituted for a war time 48 hour week.

146 STEEL UNIONS INDORSE WALKOUT OF OIL WORKERS

Delegates representing 146 unions of the United Steel Workers [CIO] in district 31 yesterday indorsed the strike of the oil workers, another CIO union, in Phillip Murray hall, 100 E. 5th av., Gary, Ind.

First negotiations on the demand of the steel workers for a general $2 a day wage increase will be conducted with the United States Steel corporation, it was announced. Negotiations probably will be opened on Oct. 10. The union had proposed Sept. 21.

David J. McDonald, secretary and treasurer of the United Steel Workers of America, asserted that the demand for the $2 a day increase was "based not only on the needs of the steel workers but of the community and nation as a whole."

The meeting adopted resolutions indorsing the CIO legislative program, including passage of the full employment act, the Wagner-Murray-Dingel social security and socialized medicine bill, the fair employment practice committee, 65 cents an hour minimum wage, abolition of the poll tax, and payment of $25 a week unemployment compensation for 26 weeks.

STRIKERS AGREE TO GO BACK IN AURORA TODAY

Most of the 800 members of five AFL unions who walked out of the Austin-Western Manufacturing company plant near Aurora Thursday agreed to return to work today at a meeting yesterday in the Aurora Labor temple, Lee Fitzpatrick, business agent of local 1202 of the machinists' union, said.

The walkout was reported to have resulted from the discharge of an inspector, Bernard Wilkie. Wilkie was advised yesterday that his dismissal will pass thru regular grievance procedure.

After the walkout, the plant was picketed by a rival CIO union which is seeking to raid the AFL unions in the plant. Fitzpatrick advised the AFL members to disregard the picket line.

Two Buses in Collision in Lake County; 26 Hurt

Twenty-six persons were injured slightly yesterday when one of two buses in which they were en route to a picnic rammed the other bus when it stopped for a traffic light at Skokie rd. and route 173 in Lake county, a mile south of the Illinois-Wisconsin state line. All were attended by the Antioch rescue squad, and were able to proceed. Both buses are owned by the Central West Motor Stages, 3453 Ogden av.

WORLD UNIONS FEDERATED SOON, SAYS HILLMAN

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Sept. 23—Sidney Hillman today told a press conference that formation of a world federation of trade unions would be achieved during the coming weeks by the delegates of 30 odd nations meeting here. But Walter Citrine, British labor leader, later confided to reporters the vast difficulties facing such organization, and expressed doubt if it could start functioning before another year.

The CIO leader received the newspapermen in his quarters in the Grand hotel above the Cafe de la Paix, in the same room where 25 years ago Sam Gompers and William Green, chasing the same ideal of world trade union federation, lived and threw shoes at hungry, oversize rats clattering about the marble floor.

The unions, after World War I., obtained the creation of the international labor office at Geneva as an adjunct to the league of nations.

Citrine Skeptical of Bids

Citrine said 29 more trade unions had applied for membership in the new world federation, most of which he had never heard of before. He expressed skepticism about many from Bulgaria, Romania, and Hungary, claiming hundreds of thousands of members, and he wants every applicant carefully investigated to insure it is not a dummy organization.

Hillman voiced sentiments about how organized labor can and must prevent war, but he shied from the question of whether he advocates a world general strike to prevent another outbreak.

Criticizes AFL Attitude

He took a pot shot at the American Federation of Labor for refusing to participate in the conference, saying its "leaders will soon change their policy when they see the members demand it."

Hillman dodged the question whether labor supports the independence of India, "because that's a political issue." Also he evaded an inquiry by a Negro reporter on whether labor demands equality of races, by explaining that that is a domestic problem, not international.

He declined to discuss German labor "or other enemy questions" but he did say he "considers Argentina the same as Spain and she should not have been admitted to the San Francisco conference, which turned labor down."

Citrine declared the British Trades Union congress recommends the new world federation taking over and employing the secretariat of the International Federation of Trade Councils, because the personnel is efficient and familiar with the problems confronting the new organization.

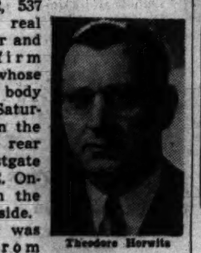
MYSTERY VEILS DEATH IN FALL OF REALTY MAN

Body Found at Foot of Hotel Fire Escape

Police sought a solution yesterday to the mysterious death of Theodore Horwitz, 42, 537 Roscoe st., real estate dealer and plastering firm executive, whose mangled body was found Saturday night in the alley at the rear of the Eastgate hotel, 162 E. Ontario st., on the near north side.



Theodore Horwitz

The body was identified from the clothing and scar marks, by Horwitz' brother-in-law, Bernard Given, of 531 Wellington av., who went to Town Hall police station to report Horwitz missing.

Horwitz left his apartment about 9 p. m. Saturday, a short time after he and his wife had returned from a ride in their automobile. He told his wife, Lillian, that he was going to park the car and buy a newspaper, and promised his children, Donald, 8, and Lois, 7, that he would bring them bottles of soft drinks.

Puts Car in Garage

A short time later he drove his car into the Hawthorne garage at 3440 Broadway, and left it in its place, without speaking to garage attendants. Garage employes said his conduct and demeanor were normal.

When he failed to return by midnight, Mrs. Horwitz called police, and was told to make a formal report at the station yesterday. In his room, Mrs. Horwitz found that her husband had removed his wrist watch and emptied his pockets of papers, money, and jewelry before he went out.

Horwitz's body was found within an hour after he left home, but was not immediately identified. The police reported that an unidentified man apparently had jumped or fallen to death from an upper floor of the hotel, but they admitted they were mystified yesterday after Horwitz was identified as the victim. He had not registered at the hotel, and had not been seen in it.

No Motive Is Found

Hotel employes found an unlocked door leading to a fire escape landing on the 16th floor, and police said Horwitz may have leaped or fallen from there, but they could discover no motive.

Horwitz was secretary of the Belsan Plastering Contracting company, 407 S. Dearborn st., and also traded in real estate. He was known as a home loving man, almost a teetotaler, and his wife said he was not in financial difficulty.

Altho Mrs. Horwitz was too hysterical to be questioned, police learned from relatives that Horwitz, while driving his car recently, was in collision with a street car. He suffered no head injury, they said, altho he received the cut on his arm which led to his identification. Relatives denied that he had been in ill health or financial difficulties.

James Belsan Jr., of 519 Selbourne rd., Riverside, president of the plastering company, said Horwitz tried to call him Saturday morning at his home and left word that it was important. Belsan could not reach him an hour later, and said he did not know what the call could have been about.

An inquest will be held today at 5145 Broadway.

LEADER OF REDS ASSAILS POLICY OF U. S. IN JAPAN

William Z. Foster, head of the Communist party in the United States, last night assailed in Chicago what he described as the "imperialistic" foreign policies of the administration, which he said included a trend toward military control of Japan as purely an American affair under the "ultra-conservative MacArthur" instead of the affair of the united nations.

He spoke at a meeting of 500 persons sponsored by Chicago Communists in the Civic Opera house.

He also assailed the United States for bringing Argentina into the united nations at San Francisco, and for its aggressive pressure in the Balkans "to force reactionary elements into the democratic governments of those areas."

H. PUEYRREDON, ONCE ARGENTINE MINISTER, DIES

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 23 (AP)—Honorio Pueyrredon, whose stormy Argentine political career included terms as foreign minister and ambassador to Washington, D. C., died today at 74.

Pueyrredon, a teacher of law, joined the first radical government formed by president Hipolito Irigoyen in 1916. He was foreign minister at the time of World War I, when Argentina did not break relations with Germany but gave the allies what Pueyrredon called "practical help." In 1932 he was banished to Patagonia and in 1934 was jailed on charges of plotting against the government.

He was ambassador in Washington from 1923 to 1928, resigning after a disagreement over tariff issues with Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes. He was long a friend of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and visited him at the White House in 1938.

MAYOR TO TELL PLAN TO CHOKE EVANSTON VICE

Mayor Ingraham of Evanston will lay before the city council at its meeting tonight his plan to clamp the lid tight on the suburb's vice and gambling, as the result of public indignation resulting from a recent series of rapes and attacks on women.

In announcing the policy Saturday night, he said he will "warn the police to quit winking at gambling and vice." He decided to act, he said, when he heard there were rumors that there was a link between policy games in the suburb's 5th ward and politicians.

As the result of the crime outbreak, county highway patrolmen led by Chief McGinnis of the sheriff's police have been patroling Evanston streets since early last week, on orders from Sheriff Mulcahy. Evanston law enforcement officials declined offers of aid from the state department of public safety.

Unfinished "Business"

By MARK MERIT

They're coming home by the shipload, and the trains and buses are crowded too. They've been waiting for this for many months and for several years. If you had made a survey among these esteemed Service people of ours, in all parts of the world, a year or so ago, and if you had put the question, "What do you want most?"—you would have heard the answer, "Speedy Victory . . . I want to go home!"

Well, here they are, tens of thousands of them. Before another year has passed, we'll be able to say "millions." If you were to ask those boys, after they have returned, "Now what do you want most?"—you'd get the answer, "I want a decent job." No need to review all the plans and efforts on the part of American business and our government, to do everything possible to provide employment for our glorious young men and women. There's reason to feel optimistic about this important matter.

However, we'd like to say something about the young men and women who interrupted their formal education to don the uniform of our armed forces. We've already met a number of them, here at Schenley, wearing "that button." They are looking for jobs, too. Under normal circumstances they would have completed their college education. It's our sincere feeling that wherever possible these fine lads and lassies ought to go back and finish that "job" just as magnificently as they finished that other job—in Europe and in the Pacific and in the American training camps.

It's not an easy thing to do, except to say it as we're saying it now, "Go back and finish your education; get that degree you wanted." Life is a long pull and now that they have done so much for others, these young men and women, they should do something now for themselves. They'll reap the benefit—all of their lives!

ARGENTINES CRY 'LIBERTY' AS U. S. ENVOY DEPARTS

Braden Aims Farewell Barb at Regime

'Restore Constitution'

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 23 (AP)—A group of retired officers of the Argentine navy signed a declaration today advocating the restoration of a constitutional government.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 23 (AP)—Amid farewell shouts of "Liberty! Liberty!" United States Ambassador Spruille Braden departed today for Washington and his new post of assistant secretary of state in charge of Latin American affairs.

Spruille Braden

"The policy of the good neighbor is not made up of empty phrases," he said in a farewell message.

The big, brusque American waved an Argentine flag from the doorway of a United States army C-47 transport plane in response to the cheers from 250 persons, including prominent members of Argentine civil and public life, and representatives of the American colony.

"Wherever I may be I shall never forget the generous, cordial manner with which the Argentine people expressed their affection for my country," he said. "The American people understand, appreciate and respect the Argentine people and extend their friendly hand."

Notables Bid Farewell

Representing the Argentine government were Carlos Echague, chief of protocol at the foreign office, and John William Cooke, son of the new foreign minister, Juan Cooke.

Notables among the Argentines included Carlos Saavedra Lamas, former foreign minister and 1936 Nobel peace prize winner; Dr. Thomas A. Le Breton, former cabinet minister and ambassador in London, and Otto and Federico Bemberg, Argentine industrialists.

Braden leaves behind him a nation of 14,000,000 persons where political opposition to the present military regime has been mounting steadily.

As guest of honor at a farewell banquet tendered by the Argentine and American cultural institute, Braden declared:

"The voice of liberty is making itself heard in this country, and I am not of the belief that any one will be able to smother it."

Peron Seen as Target

His remarks were interpreted as being aimed at Vice President Col. Juan Peron, who may run for president in the elections the military regime has promised before 1946. Peron, who says he has 4,000,000 workers and 100,000 soldiers "at my beck and call," is heard more often in Argentina than ailing President Edelmiro Farrell.

When Braden came here four months ago he plunged vigorously into the task of establishing relations with a regime accused of giving lip service to the allied cause while tolerating axis activities.

His critics dubbed him "Cowboy Braden" and accused him of wielding a Yankee big stick. There were anti-United States and anti-Braden demonstrations in which extremists shouted "Death to Braden!"

Cheered by Foes of Regime

On the other hand he was widely cheered by thousands at the increasing demonstrations against the regime.

Last month Cooke became foreign minister with an announced program of "inalterable" cooperation with the United States.

Braden conferred with him and 48 hours later the government, at Cooke's request, closed Japanese and German newspapers, and Japanese and German schools. A decree announced cancelation of Argentine resident citizenship to all condemned of axis espionage.

Braden succeeds Nelson A. Rockefeller in his new post. His successor as ambassador has not been announced.

HOUSE SUMMONS COMMUNISTS TO GET PARTY AIMS

Group to Hear Foster, Browder and Davis

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 (AP)—A congressional investigation confronted Communist leaders today as an aftermath of the reorganization of their party.

The house committee on un-American activities will make the inquiry with the prime objective, members told a reporter, of ascertaining whether the Communists are conducting operations "dangerous" to the nation.

This is the situation, as outlined by committeemen:

Four Communist leaders have been called to testify Wednesday regarding the party's recent reorganization. They are Earl Browder, former party chief; his successor, William Z. Foster; Benjamin Davis, Negro vice president of the party, and Jack Stachel, publicity director.

Tammany Leader Called

Edward J. Loughlin, New York City's Tammany hall leader, has been summoned to testify the same day regarding his group's indorsement—later withdrawn—of Davis as a city council candidate.

Investigators are making further inquiry into reported communistic activities on the west coast, particularly among the Hollywood film colony. One report already has been filed, but some members said it was "so hot" it hasn't been made public.

Committee Chairman Wood [D., Ga.] said in an interview his group will meet Tuesday to decide whether the Wednesday session shall be open to newsmen and the public.

Landis Favors Open Session

"We plan to hear these witnesses to see what the Communists are doing and planning, but we haven't decided yet if such testimony should be made public," Wood asserted.

Rep. Landis [R., Ind.] declared he favored "open hearings, to find out whether the Communists are still planning to destroy or overthrow the American system of government."

Landis said he particularly wanted information about the August meeting of the party when Foster replaced Browder as general secretary.

Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.] reported he is specially interested in hearings on the west coast situation. He told a reporter "Alien elements are at work out there to overthrow our government by means of subtle propaganda in our movies."

TRUMAN URGES CLOTHING GIFTS TO WAR VICTIMS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 (AP)—President Truman today called upon the United States to contribute clothing again to prevent "incalculable hardships" among war sufferers in liberated areas of Europe and the Pacific.

He asked Henry J. Kaiser, west coast industrialist, to head a drive similar to one held under Kaiser's direction last spring. Kaiser has accepted.

The White House made public a letter from the President to Kaiser saying, "It is imperative that we act at once to provide clothing for the relief of men, women, and children in war ravaged lands."

U. of I. to Have 3,426 New Pupils at Opening

DAY by DAY on the FARM by GAIL COMPTON

Sept. 23, 1945.

THE big Aberdeen-Angus breeding herd at the Fox river farm has been returning some nice profits to the manager recently. Caring for the herd of almost 100 cows is a tremendous job. Tho the returns are slow in coming, they are ample pay for the time and labor involved.

Since Aug. 6, more than $15,000 worth of cattle have been sold from the herd. Some of these animals were fat steers and the rest were heifers sold for breeding purposes.

46 Heifers in One Sale

One purchaser in La Salle county bought 46 open heifers in one sale. The heifers had been held for August breeding on the farm. Most of them were 1943 heifers and a few were from the 1942 and 1944 calf crops. The purchaser said he would use the heifers in his own Angus herd for breeding purposes. That the buyer likes the type of cattle produced at the farm is indicated by the fact he had bought 21 head three years ago.

Ten heifers, late 1944 calves weighing about 500 pounds, were sold the other day to another man from La Salle county.

There still are 26 heifers from the 1944 calf crop left for sale. Interested buyers should communicate with Clarence Thurow, farm manager, care of the Tribune farm, Yorkville, Ill.

So far there are 66 calves in the 1945 crop, of which about 33 are heifers. These will be retained in the herd for replacement of old cows. All calves are vaccinated against Bang's disease.

Herd's Losses Moderate

Losses in the herd have been moderate this year. Two steers, one of which was on feed in the barn yard, died from undetermined causes. Two heifers which were being fattened died when they stuffed themselves with food. One cow was killed in the pasture by lightning.

In the last three and one-half years the Fox river herd has sent more than 145 breeding animals into other herds scattered thru Illinois and Wisconsin. This is a good record and a sign that the farm's bloodlines are popular. The main herd sire for the 1946 calves will be a top quality bull named Blackcap-mere 199. Two other good bulls will be purchased for the herd between now and spring.

The work of sorting and selling the heifers fortunately was done before silo filling started. The men now are busy cutting from eight to 10 acres of silage corn a day and blowing it into the big concrete silo. The silo will be packed with around 470 tons of silage when the men finish.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GARDENERS who have cabbages approaching maturity should take steps to prevent the heads from splitting. Flat type cabbages, particularly Wisconsin all-seasons and flat Dutch varieties, are especially subject to splitting. Savoy and cone shaped varieties such as Jersey Wakefield are less subject to this type of damage.

If one or two heads in a planting start to split, there are two precautionary steps which may be taken to prevent injury of the remaining plants. The first is to remove the largest outer leaves, thus slowing the plant growth. The second is to dislodge the roots. This can be done by placing the hands under the basal leaves and lifting the entire root a fraction of an inch thru the soil. Cabbages will keep perfectly in this condition until frost time, but will not put on new growth and therefore will not split.

Heads which do split should be harvested as soon as possible. If left in the ground they are subject to weather and insect damage.

150 PUPPIES TAKE PART IN SHOW IN SOLDIERS' FIELD

Approximately 150 puppies yesterday were paraded in the fall puppy match at Soldiers' field at the beginning of national dog week.

Entries included dogs from 3 to 12 months old. The match opened on Hutchinson field but later was moved into the Soldiers' field stadium because of rain.

Entertainment was provided by Corporal Buck, a bulldog known as the "Quiz Kid," which, its owner said, has a vocabulary of five words and numerous tricks. Miss Charlotte Gilbert, the dog's owner, said she and the Corporal had visited hospital trains, army camps, and appeared on many radio networks in connection with the war effort, for which they received a citation from "Dogs for Defense."

Japs Find 154,300 Acres Available for Colonists

TOKYO, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Domei agency reported today that an imperial university survey showed 154,300 acres of uncultivated land in the northern island of Hokkaido available for colonists. The survey estimated that this acreage, half government owned and half private, could support approximately 1,000,000 persons.

TROOP TRAIN WRECK AT DOLTON; NONE OF SOLDIERS ON IT HURT

Occupants in a seven car troop train of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad escaped injury early yesterday when the engine, tender, and front truck of the first passenger car went off the end of a derail near 138th st. in Dolton, Ill.

Wrecking crews were called immediately to right the overturned engine and car, and a new locomotive was brought up to continue the troop train on its way to St. Louis, Mo., from Camp McCoy, Wis.

Railroad employes at the scene said that the signals apparently had been against the southbound troop train, in which case the derail would automatically be open. Sgt. J. P. Lau of the Dolton police said the soldier passengers on the train, all of whom were uninjured, chuckled nervously at their close call, saying that they had dodged bullets for three years overseas only to meet with a train wreck on their return home.

CHICAGOANS GET FISH AND DEER ON TRIP TO CANADA

Hunting and fishing are in season in Canada, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jennings of 5106 Halsted st. and Michael Sullivan of 8746 Blackstone av. are the first Chicagoans to report a successful bag. Mrs. Jennings was credited by the two men with catching two muskellunge, one weighing 37½ pounds and the other 21½, in Big Vermillion lake, at Sioux Lookout, Ontario. The men shot one deer that weighed 283 pounds and another that weighed 265 pounds. Sullivan used a rifle that his brother, John, took from a German in the "Battle of the Bulge," in Belgium.

AUTO DEMOLISHED BY TRAIN

The automobile of George Bauer, 38, of Bensonville, was destroyed early yesterday when it stalled on the Soo line tracks at Touhy av. in Des Plaines, and was struck by a frate train. Bauer, who was attempting to push the car clear of the tracks, was uninjured.

"DRY" grapes from non-irrigated vineyards in Southern California give I.V.C. wines that extra delicious flavor.
Naturally, these non-irrigated "DRY" grapes of ours grow smaller, but the precious juices are more luscious . . . just naturally richer for wine.

Sally Requests Furniture for 2 Tiny Children

[Sally Joy Brown department activities are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Tots' needs are revealed in the appeals presented today, and we hope mothers who can spare items from their own children's outgrown supplies will get in touch with this department.

Mrs. M., a south side mother, has been living with her two small daughters, 7 weeks and 4 years old, at the home of her parents, since her own home was broken by divorce. Difficulty in providing for the needs of their own large brood precludes the possibility of her parents' aiding her with anything more than food and shelter, and she is unable to work. The baby has neither bed nor warm blankets, and both children are in immediate need of warm clothing of all kinds. Arrangements can be made to call for offers.

The 18 month old son of Mrs. B., also from the south side, has had pneumonia and only recently returned from the hospital. She has asked our aid in obtaining a nursery chair and a child's bed. For lack of something more commodious, he sleeps in a first size crib, which affords him little comfort or rest. Both parents are in poor health. Mr. B.'s recurrent illnesses have made for sporadic employment and the necessity of meeting hospital and medical bills prevents his purchasing baby equipment.

Mrs. K. L., Chicago—This summer I tried cleaning my iced tea sippers with tobacco pipe cleaners. They did the work well.

Grace F., Detroit, Mich.—Have read a lot of ways for removing a grease spot from wall paper. The simplest method I know is to rub a lump of gloss starch on the spot.

Mrs. Fred A., Cedar Rapids, Ia.—When I must remove a spot of ink from a piece of paper I dip a cloth in a little commercial liquid bleach. Then I wring cloth, rub over the spot, and the ink disappears.

'Johnny Angel' Involved, Yet Colorful Film

"JOHNNY ANGEL"

Produced by RKO-Radio, directed by Edwin L. Marin, featuring George Raft, Claire Trevor, Signe Hasso, Lowell Gilmore, Marvin Miller, Hoagy Carmichael, Margaret Wycherly, J. Farrell MacDonald, and Mack Gray. Presented at the Woods.

By Mae Tinée

This murky mystery has two things I have a weakness for—ships and Hoagy Carmichael. The opening shots of a frater sliding thru a leaden sea in a heavy fog gave me a terrific yen for a place on the deck of just such a ship in just such weather—you can almost smell the good salt air—ah, me! Won't it be wonderful when we can get on a boat again?

As for Hoagy, he's just as likably lackadaisical as ever in a wrinkled seersucker suit and a battered hat, which he switches for a cab driver's cap when the spirit moves him, and he sings plaintively of "Mam-phis in Joo-oon"—but there isn't enough of him to suit my taste.

There are other characters, including the sleek George Raft as Johnny Angel, master of a cargo boat, which nearly runs down another ship lying dead in the water. Johnny recognizes it for his father's ship, boards her, and a search reveals both captain and crew missing. Father and son are both employed by the same steamship line, and their boss, a mushy sort of character named Gustafson, seems quite indifferent to the mystery, being more concerned by the conduct of his glittery blonde wife [Claire Trevor] who likes to frequent her old haunts—night clubs in the French quarter of New Orleans.

Johnny, determined to learn more about his father, imitates the Prince Charming by searching for a girl who left one shoe in the cabin she occupied on the ill-fated "Emmaline Quincy."

A long and bewildering search ensues, in and out of bars and night clubs, and involving a lot of shooting, at least three wild fist fights [during two of which Johnny loses his quarry, who seems to have more lives than a cat] plus a little sex appeal applied to Gustafson's dissatisfied wife who has an obvious yen for the dark haired sailor.

The gal the shoe fits is Signe Hasso and she certainly has troubles. Another perturbed soul is Margaret Wycherly, who does a nice bit as Drum, Gusty's old nurse who loves him as only a mother could—most people can't stand him. Poor Drum had all my sympathies at the end of the film—which doesn't occur until at least 16 people are bumped off. [That figure may not be exact, but I didn't have an adding machine on hand to keep score.]

The film has a lot of flavor and plenty of suspense. The acting is all excellent, but the plot becomes extremely involved and some of the time you're sure to wonder what the heck it's all about. A little restraint would have made this a crackerjack. As it is, it's not bad entertainment, and if you guess whodunit you're a better sleuth than I am, Gunga Din.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 23—Cary Grant and Alfred Hitchcock are talking about doing "Hamlet," and you can bet they'll do it on their own, too. I mean "Hamlet" in modern dress. Years ago John Barrymore wanted to do that with Howard Hughes. . . . We have at least one movie producer who listens to the radio. David Selznick heard Herbert Marshall and Rosemary Decamp in "Turnip's Blood" on "This Is My Best." The minute they were off the air, David called up and bought the story. . . . Ray McCarey has written an original story titled "Reunion in Brooklyn." It's all about a reception for the boys who are coming home, given by all the famous people who hail from Brooklyn. I don't know whether the Marx Brothers or William Bendix will be in the picture, but I'll bet Phil Regan will. . . . It made me just a shade ill to learn that Charles Feldman intends doing the life of John McCormack, because when he left here, McCormack was one of the saddest men I ever knew. There was no job open for him, he'd lost his beautiful home here and everything he held dear except his devoted wife, children, and their home in Ireland.

From Air to Film

Carlton Alsop has signed to produce at Metro. Carlton has been in show business all his life. This new job means that he and his wife, Martha Scott, who's playing in "Voice of the Turtle" in New York, will have to be separated many months. But Martha's delighted with her husband's job and so am I. . . . What's this? Metro raising the price for "Ziegfeld Follies." I could understand it had they chosen "Anchors Aweigh." . . . Vincente Minnelli is interested in putting Victor Borge on the screen. It's about time some one did. . . . It remains to be seen whether Myrna Loy has bettered herself in moving to R. K. O. "Come Share My Love" doesn't sound nearly as permanent as "Mrs. Thin Man."

In the Nick of Time

Robert Porterfield of the Barter theater, out of uniform, decided to call on his old friend Gregory Peck. When he got to the house Mrs. Peck and her housekeeper called from an upstairs window, "Stay away." There's a rattlesnake trying to get in thru the front door." And sure enough there was. Bob hails from that part of Virginia where they use rattlers with their religious service, but he's not a member of the sect that gets chummy with 'em. So he got a hoe and killed it. . . . Well, well. "The Spanish Main" could be "Princess and the Pirate." The only thing missing is Bob Hope and his comedy. Maureen O'Hara is beautiful, and whatever honors were left after technicolor, Binnie Barnes wrapped up and took home with her. She played a lady pirate. . . . William Seiter, commenting on Shirley Temple's wedding, said, "I know that church well. Laura La Plante and I were married there." His present wife remarked, "And I was one of the wedding guests." I ended up with, "Yes, and Laura wore my pearls." Then we all laughed.

Back to His Old Home

John Ford told me he wouldn't sign with Republic until he learned how Frank Borzage made out. And just as I suspected, Jack has gone back with 20th. . . . Henry Fonda will do one a year for three years with 20th, and free lance the rest of the time. Fonda also has two "Suspense" shows and an appearance on "Cavalcade of America" lined up. . . . Fred Brady's drunk scene with Spring Byington in "Song of Broadway" even had Harry Cohn giggling. . . . Kay Kyser told me he is awfully tired, but he's starting another coast to coast tour Oct. 10. He'll be at Annapolis for the naval academy's 100th anniversary. I thought it was older than that. . . . Howard Hawks may direct "Life with Father." He hasn't yet seen or read the play, but he does know Howard Lindsay and Bussel Crouse well, and if they and Jack Warner want him to do it, why not? . . . George Waggner, who'll direct "Tangiers," realizing that Maria Montez is expecting a baby, said to her, "We've got to hurry. Don't forget we're working against time." "Time?" said Maria, "Don't you mean inflation?"

Not to Reason Why!

Michael Wolfe designs Loretta Young's clothes because Universal wouldn't lend Travis Banton, who's practically out of his mind doing clothes for both Deanna Durbin and Maria Montez. . . . Paul Mantz, besides being a good pilot, is also a business man. He flies our stars to their weddings and back for their divorces. On one side of his card is his price to Las Vegas and on the other, the fare to Reno. . . . Dr. Frank Griffin, Irene Dunne's husband, is still under an oxygen tent. . . . Joe E. Brown's daughter, Mary, is well enough to go back to school.

Newest Fabrics Are Shown for Dressmakers

BY REA SEEGER

When a fabric showing is run off for the approval of professional dressmakers, you may be certain all the newest colors, textures, and combinations and contrasts are featured. While such a fashion show dramatizes materials, every fabric is made up into a costume to show the possibilities of various weaves, textures, and colors worked in harmony blendings or in spirited contrasts.

Coats, dresses, suits, and evening gowns were included in this showing, and all the newest color dramatics were played in almost infinite variety.

Smart short coats in the newest fall and winter colors, and made of fine woolens, illustrated what can be done with monotones and with pronounced textures or soft suede-like weaves. Braid trim on some of the long fitted coats also were examples of expert workmanship. Both town and country suits and costumes of dress with coat highlighted dashing contrasts of color or unusual combinations of patterned and plain woolens. Afternoon dresses of suave, clinging crepes in lovely colors illustrated to perfection what can be made with fine crepes in the newest silhouette.

Most exciting of all were the newest evening gowns and dinner dresses fashioned of exquisitely colorful brocades and satins and heavy taffetas. These portrayed the new urge for gala occasion gowns [floor length], and many were made with appreciably wider and fuller skirts. Long sleeved brocade gowns for evening are extremely handsome.

Thru the Looking Glass

You'd be wrong if you'd come to think there could be nothing radically different about a cake makeup. We didn't see ourselves how there could be any more variations on what is now an old cosmetic theme, but our eyes popped when we saw the one that a famous beauty house has brought out after long and deliberate experimentation.

This is, we suspect, what the woman who is deadly afraid of skin dryness has been waiting for.

In texture it's entirely different. It's like a cake of cream, with the feel of a solidly packed cream. Our first thought was that it could be used without water, but in this, as in so many more instances, it develops that the manufacturer knows best. For results that are as close to perfection as such things can be it should be applied over a perfectly cleansed skin with a tiny pad of absorbent cotton that's been wrung out in cold water. It should be drawn over the entire skin surface of the face and neck with the cotton pad, blended with the dry, clean fingertips until it is perfectly smooth and dry.

This gives as lovely, as velvety a finish to the skin as we've ever seen achieved with a makeup base. It's not maskiike, but it does veil imperfections and it provides a beautiful base for a light dusting powder. You can leave powder off if you like the unpowdered finish, but if you don't you can be sure that the final job will be a suave one, and one that holds well for hours.

This is a makeup for the young skin and the one that's not so youthful—and it's completely agreeable to the dry skin.

Several Clubs to Open Doors for Fall Season Next Month

BY JUDITH CASS

NOW that cold winds are turning the summer's foliage to rust and gold, Chicagoans again are forsaking the outdoors for cozy gatherings within town clubs. The Arts club, the Casino, and the Fortnightly will open their doors for the season on Oct. 1. The Arts club will mark the occasion on that day with a tea for members from 4 to 6 p. m. Altho the Fortnightly will not have its first meeting on the fall calendar until Oct. 25, it will be host to the St. Luke's fashion committee and its mannequins at a fashion show rehearsal on Oct. 10.

The Woman's Athletic club, which closed for two weeks in August and reopened the day after Labor day, never has been so busy as it is now. The club has not yet set a definite date for its first lecture of the new season, but it will probably be held about the middle of October. Members of the Tavern club, which has remained opened thru the summer months, will have to wait until November before they again can attend the friendly Sunday morning breakfasts, which have become a custom at the club and which were discontinued during the summer.

The Cordon club has issued invitations to its opening tea from 4 to 6 p. m. on Saturday. Miss Melita Skillen, president of the club, will be a special guest at the party. The board of directors and the committee chairmen will receive.

Debut News

Added to the ever growing list of debutantes is the name of Miss Joan Farwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Farwell III. of Lake Shore dr. The Farwells will introduce their daughter at a dinner-dance in the Racquet club on Dec. 27. Miss Farwell is a freshman at Vassar.

The debut tea on Dec. 22 at which Miss Lina Kimball and Miss Bleecker Burnett will share honors may be given in the Winnetka home of Miss Kimball's grandmother, Mrs. William Winton. After the late afternoon party, Mrs. Winton will entertain at dinner and dancing for the two young women and their assistants and escorts. Mr. and Mrs. David Wheeler Kimball and Mr. and Mrs. Muscoe Burnett Jr. are the buds' parents.

Miss Barbara Ann King, whose name was on last year's debutante list, but who never had a party, will be introduced to society this year. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry King of Lake Forest, will entertain for her during the Christmas holidays.

Service Notes

This week will be an eventful one for the Ralph Bards, for their son, Lt. Bard Jr. of the marine corps, is expected to arrive on the west coast from duty on Okinawa, and his brother-in-law, Lt. Martin Manulis, who returned from Europe early in the summer, will receive his discharge from the navy. Lt. and Mrs. Manulis have been living in New York while he has been stationed there. Another of the Bards' sons-in-law, Maj. Thomas Johnson, is stationed in Paris in the headquarters of the air transport command. While he is away Mrs. Johnson is living with her parents in Highland Park.

Just back from Russia, where he took one of the last lend-lease boats, Lt. Malcolm Millard has reported for duty at Great Lakes, which will enable him to be with his wife and family in their home in Deerfield. His brother, Everett L. Millard Jr., who is also a navy lieutenant, is stationed as a gunnery instructor at a navy training school near New York.

Birth Announcements

Burt A. Massee's first grandchild was born on Friday in Orange Park, Fla., where Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Johnson Massee [Frederica McIntosh] welcomed a daughter. The baby has been named Margaret for her paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Margaret J. Massee of Orange Park. Mrs. Frederick F. McIntosh of Sewickley, Pa., is her maternal grandmother. In their E. Walton pl. apartment, the senior Mr. Massee and his wife are enjoying a reunion with his daughter, Miss Margot Massee, who arrived Friday from her summer home in Asheville, N. C., for a visit here.

In the nursery of their Evanston home, Robert and Tommy Bentley are enjoying a new playmate, their baby brother, Peter. The third son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Bentley [Helen Lord] was born on Aug. 12 in Evanston hospital. Mr. Bentley's mother, Mrs. Elias M. Bentley, who has been here for the summer, will return to her home in Mamaroneck, N. Y., next month.

Romantic News

At a tea recently in their home in Elgin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Rinehimer announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Lt. Robert C. Edwards of the navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred D. Edwards, also of Elgin. Lt. Edwards was here for the party from Minneapolis, Minn., where he is doing research work at the naval air station. Miss Rinehimer, a 1938 graduate of Dana Hall, attended the University of Wisconsin and Finch Junior college. Her fiancé was graduated from the Choate school and from Princeton university, where he was a member of the Quadrangle club. He attended the University of Chicago's meteorology school and served for 18 months in the Aleutians.

The many who met Massimo Freccia, conductor of the New Orleans Symphony orchestra, when he was here as guest conductor with the Chicago Symphony orchestra during the Ravinia festival season, will be interested to learn that he and Mrs. Maria Luisa Azpiazu, daughter of Mrs. Fausta Villapol of Havana, and of Eusebio Azpiazu, were married in New York last Friday. Mr. Freccia, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lazzaro Freccia of Florence, Italy, was musical director of the Havana Philharmonic orchestra for three years.

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠AK2 ♥AK743 ♦AK ♣532
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 no trump	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades or pass. The important consideration is not to make any drastic slam try that will land you beyond game, which would almost certainly place you in jeopardy. You have already fired your big salvo and nothing seems to have happened. Partner's three no trump bid was forced and you may not expect more than two hearts in his hand since he failed to take a preference. Any such call as a Blackwood four no trump would not be in order since an 11 trick contract cannot be guaranteed.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠AQJ5 ♥A5 ♦762 ♣QJ74
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 heart	Double	2 hearts
2 spades	3 diamonds	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. This is a mild overbid since you have made a rather minimum double, but circumstances have made it necessary. Partner's two spade bid was made freely, which minimizes the danger of your aggressive action. Had partner's bid been forced, proper strategy would call for a pass by you at this point allowing the auction to roll around to him.

Q. 3—East and West vulnerable and as South you hold:
♠J10 ♥A9843 ♦Q9765 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 club	4 spades	Pass
Pass	5 clubs	Double	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. You should give no consideration to bidding five spades despite the fact that your hand contains some helpful features for partner. If he wished to afford you an option he could have passed the five club bid around to you. Evidently his pre-emptive bid was something in the nature of a double-cross to entice West, which he has succeeded in doing.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠85 ♥A84 ♦AKJ84 ♣J63
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three no trump. You have more than the equal of an opening bid and partner has opened which adds up to a game, but no slam since partner has approximately a minimum. Any such action as a jump in diamonds would be completely pointless since it is quite evident that no trump is the spot.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠AKQJ96 ♥A5 ♦AKQ2 ♣10
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
2 spades	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. The partner hasn't very much, a slam is there if he happens to have specifically the king of hearts. Since spades have already been agreed upon the four heart bid is an obvious one showing bid and if partner happens to have the king he should raise to five. If not he will merely return to four spades and that will be that.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
♠K2 ♥QJ5 ♦AJ93 ♣AQ74
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East

What do you bid now?

A.—Two no trump. This is much preferable to raising the clubs, since the latter action might induce partner to gamble it out for three no trump without a spade stopper and a spade lead thru your king might prove disastrous. You should be careful to assure the opening lead coming up to you should no trump become the final contract.

The bidding has proceeded:

What do you bid now?

A.—Five hearts. When the king of spades is regarded as a full trick your hand is about the equal of an opening bid and since partner has opened and jumped you should give some consideration to slam possibilities. Partner will realize that you have neither the ace of diamonds or clubs since you failed to show them.

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. This affords partner the opportunity of deciding what is the best procedure. He may be able to double the enemy, who could conceivably have stepped out of bounds, or he may decide to go on. You have no way of judging which is the more profitable action.

Citizens Opera Makes Bow to 3,000 Auditors

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

The Citizens Opera company's maiden presentation, Smetana's "The Bartered Bride," at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium on Saturday night, turned out to be a presentable artistic effort and a first class job of merchandising. Some 3,000 auditors paid their respects at the box office. Anna Fitzu, president of the new organization, in an entr'acte speech attributed the onrush of customers to plugs by her favorite [understandably so] early morning radio commentator, a cue offered for what it is worth to promoters of other musical ventures.

As in many similar operatic performances, the good in this "Bartered Bride" had a tendency to mitigate the bad, and the bad to nullify the good. It was in English—the sensible but none too well pointed translation of Libushka Bartusek—and that was generally to the good, tho the most spontaneous laughs came from the several interpolated lines in Czech.

The major roles of the two lovers had expert exponents in Jarmila Novotna and Michael Bartlett. Their youth, good looks, easy naturalness on the stage, and vocal fluency created a credibility that $6 opera does not achieve too frequently. Both projected their English lines with a clarity that should have made many converts to the cause of opera in the vernacular.

Miss Novotna looked highly attractive—tho her constant coyness did not add as much to her impersonation as perhaps she thought it did—and her singing was always good, if not invariably stamped with remarkable beauty. Mr. Bartlett mugged a bit too much, but that was easy to forget when his light but pure and beautifully produced tenor voice went into action.

That was the best of it. From there credits must be in diminuendo. Ashland auditorium was not designed for opera—nor, for that matter, for music—and the acoustical proportions of voices and orchestra were continually at sixes and sevens. The orchestra, under Jerzy Bojanowski, played competently, but with only casual regard for the finer nuances, nor were the conductor's tempi inclined to extract all the sunshine from the sparkling score. The chorus was large and enthusiastic, but not remarkable for volume, and more often than not chased along after the beat.

Alois Bragagnolo was familiar with all the traditional comic business of the role of the marriage broker, but for the most part managed to be something less than really funny. His voice was good enough in the middle range, but foundered inaudibly on the important low notes. John Toms, who can really sing well, tho you would never have guessed it, was a reasonably comic town idiot, and Stefan Kozakevich presented a mellowed portrait of the father.

The scenery was dingy, the lighting seemed planned to blind the audience rather than illuminate the stage, the costumes were correct but not particularly attractive, and the Bernice Holmes ballet, even tho cramped for space, seemed mainly to indulge in a species of hopping.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Now We Know

And now we know how to keep everything under control. L. C. D. sends along a quotation, author's name forgotten, effective in stenographic-secretarial duties:

Men must be taught
As if you taught them not,
And things unknown

Not Nosey

I'd not want to call him a prevaricator [a big word], but when I walked into the office the other morning and caught my boss snooping thru my desk, he looked up and said, naively, "Now, Miss Blank, please don't think I'm nosey—just checking to see if you could use a new desk." JOYCE

Office Irks

Our office boy who delights in small fry pranks—lipstick on typewriter keys, pepper gum, sneezing powder, etc.—when the boss is away.

Department heads who don't confine their stenographic work to their own departments—then expect to have it done immediately.

The girl who hums a catchy tune at the next desk and, after I've griped about it, catches me humming the same tune 10 minutes later. ANOTHER WORKING GIRL

For The WCG Copybook

Betty Jo is very pretty,
Annabelle is gay and witty;
Yet, Sarah Lee, who's really plain
And only average as to brain,
Has loads more friends than either two:
Sarah Lee is kind and true.

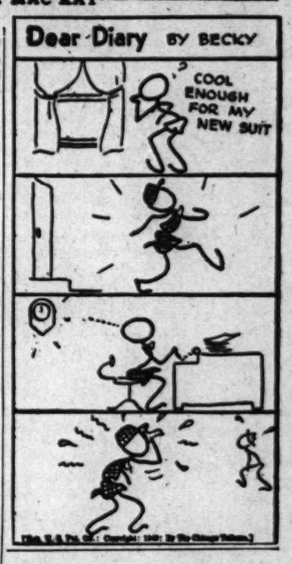
Correction

I read with interest the recent article about the newsboy at La Salle and Adams sts., but his name is not Joe. It is Tony Galante. He has so many friends that we feel he should be described as Tony so everybody will recognize him.

Tony, by the way, has been on the street so long and has rubbed shoulders with so many topnotch lawyers, financiers, and others that he has acquired an interesting philosophy of life. We all pause for a moment to chat with him as we would with any good friend. ALBERT J. PETERSON



Dis and Data

A Chicago house magazine is running six photographs, "One Day in the Life of a White Collar Dog"—the Seeing Eye dog, Diana, who takes Naomi Drake [blind since childhood] to work every day. . . . A reader reports another mother-son combination—both white collar workers with the same firm. They are Evelyn and John Cotey. . . . Did you know that when male telephone operators were replaced by girls it was because "girls are steadier and do not drink beer"—according to a history of the telephone business? . . . And did you know that President Truman's secretary, Rose Conway, formerly was secretary to his brother? Mr. Truman observed her efficiency and asked for her services in Washington.

"Rumor Had It" . . . . . By Christopher Hale

(Copyright: 1945: By Mrs. Frances Stephens)

SYNOPSIS: Erica Pomeroy, whose parents died and left her a fortune, returns from Boston, bringing a fiance, Toby Newcomb. It was expected Erica would marry Huntley Price. Huntley appeals to Mr. Izenga to help him win back Erica. Mr. Izenga had been in love with Erica's mother and had shared with her grandmother the upbringing of the girl. He dislikes Toby's mocking air. Ridge Dawson, Mrs. Pomeroy's brother, drops in at Mr. Izenga's for cocktails before his sister's birthday dinner. Ridge is charming, unreliable, has had several wives, and is always in debt. He is about to ask his sister for a loan and wants Mr. Izenga to put in a good word for him. The other guests at the dinner are Hester Pomeroy Duke and her husband Harry, Erica, Toby, and Huntley. Mrs. Pomeroy's son, Bennet, arrives after the dinner with Lucianna Dupres, whom he refuses to marry. Lucianna is bleeding Mrs. Pomeroy, as she has just cause for a breach of promise suit. Mrs. Pomeroy's threat to cut Erica off without a cent if she marries against her wishes falls on deaf ears. Late that night Mrs. Pomeroy is strangled, and insists Toby tried to kill her. She felt his ring. Bennet is found in a drunken sleep. A second attempt to strangle Mrs. Pomeroy is successful. Police believe Bennet has been drugged. Hester Duke, in a frenzy, accuses Toby. Erica suggests to Lt. French that Mr. Izenga will represent them. Angeline, the maid, finds a ring she believes is Toby's on the floor beside Mrs. Pomeroy's bed. Tho he denies the ring is his, Toby is taken away by troopers. The trellis under Mrs. Pomeroy's window is broken, and there are muddy handprints on her window sill. French doesn't suspect Toby. Hester is questioned.

INSTALMENT XIII.

QUESTIONING

French never removed his eyes from Hester Duke's face. "Let's hear your story of the attack," he said. She began, very haltingly and very spitefully, her version of that scene.

"So," she wound up, "It's no wonder it is obvious to all of us that Toby Newcomb succeeded in his second attempt."

"Why didn't you notify the police the first night?"

"My mother wouldn't let us. She hated scandal."

"Didn't you think it was your duty, anyway?"

Mrs. Duke said sullenly, "You didn't know her."

"And now," French said, "I'd like a statement on you and your husband's movements last night."

"Good heavens! You aren't asking me for an alibi for my own mother's murder?"

"Mrs. Duke, will you please just answer the questions?"

"I consider that an insult, but to be released from this persecution, I'll tell you. We, Harry and I, played bridge with our friends, the Jack Marsdens, till eleven. We came home, had drinks, and went to bed."

"Did either of you leave the house during the night?"

Mrs. Duke lifted her chin. "Of course not!"

French let her go and questioned her husband. He told the same story. As soon as the door closed on Harry Duke, the lieutenant looked soberly at Mr. Izenga.

"Why will people try to lie?" he asked wearily. "They can't all be guilty, and it doubles the work!"

Mr. Ridge Dawson entered, distinguished and grave. Mr. Izenga was hard put to it to control his irritation at Ridge's story. He told the lieutenant he had gone to his apartment at 10 and slept, more or less until awakened by Erica's tragic phone call in the morning.

His manner was perfect. Serious, sincere, decisive.

"What do you mean by more or less, Mr. Dawson?"

Ridge Dawson smiled, urbanely. "Well, the fact is I really have no satisfactory alibi, if one wants to suspect me of killing my own sister. If I'd know what was happening, I'd not have chosen last night to have indigestion. I waked about 2 with pretty bad cramps. I took some soda but that didn't help so I went down to the drug store in the building. It was closed. I walked to the other three in the village and all of them were closed. By that time I felt better, so I went home. I didn't meet anything but two cats."

"Did any one see you leave or enter your apartment house?"

Mr. Dawson shrugged. "I couldn't say. I tried to be quiet so as not to disturb any one else. But there are a couple of women there who seem to belong to a private Watch and Ward society. Maybe they heard me. But I, with my training, can assure you I'd have had time to do the crime . . . if that was when it happened . . . and if, as I say, any one thinks me capable of it."

The possibility seemed preposterous. The well dressed, composed gentleman, lounging in the blue chair with smoke drifting from his cigaret, was hardly to be imagined in the killer's role.

"Thank you for being frank, Mr. Dawson," French said. "It always saves time and trouble."

At last French let Mr. Dawson go. The door had hardly shut before he said:

"Mr. Izenga, have you any comment to make on what we have just heard?"

Mr. Izenga thought fast. Was a hint, a mere insinuation, a fact? Did he really know anything about Ridge's night?

At last he said, "There's nothing I can say."

French smiled. "Confidences, Mr. Izenga?"

But he did not push the point. Mr. Izenga thought, this fellow French was really a gentleman, in spite of being a policeman. He murmured:

"Of course, Mr. Dawson had nothing to do with this dreadful crime, lieutenant. But he is a gentleman, and . . . uh . . . rather fascinating. I often think a lot of innocent reputations are ruined in these cases where a little discretion would have saved them."

The lieutenant agreed, heartily. Then he stepped into the hall and called one of the troopers.

"Check on Mr. Ridge Dawson's alibi for last night, Jim. And, you can start by cherchezing his femmes."

Huntley Price looked harder hit by the disaster than any one else, except Erica.

Mr. Izenga yearned to help him. He vowed to take poor, dear Letitia Pomeroy's place and oust that Newcomb from Huntley's peaceful life.

Huntley's voice was a brittle whisper but he was earnest.

"Just what was your relation to Mrs. Pomeroy, Mr. Price?" French began.

"Well I always called her aunt, and she called herself my great-aunt but I guess we were really cousins."

"Third cousins, once removed," Mr. Izenga said waspishly. What in the world did that matter?

But Huntley was earnestly telling how he had spent the evening with the John Lungers and had come back to the big, silent house next door at 11. He had not noticed any activity nor any noise at Westerly during the night.

He had gone to bed at 11. The old housekeeper who tended his wants and looked after the house in the Galts' absences, slept too far away to corroborate anything he might say. He might have come in and gone out half a dozen times in the night without her knowing it.

". . . tho why I should want to harm Aunt Letty, I wouldn't know," he added brokenly. "She was the best friend I had . . . almost like a mother to me . . ." he pressed his lips together.

French did not keep him long.

Mr. Izenga followed Huntley out on the terrace. They sat down on a white bench facing the long, luscious sweep of lawn toward the little lake. Huntley sighed.

"I can say this to you, Mr. Izenga. Nobody else would understand. But I love this place. I helped Aunt Letty plan most of it. She said it would be mine some day. She said I was the only one who loved it as much as she did. And she was right. Of course I . . . I care for Erica more . . . and in a different way. But to lose them both to this hard, crude stranger . . . it's just a little more than I can bear."

Mr. Izenga grasped his arm.

"Don't bear it, then. Don't let him have her, Huntley," he urged fiercely. "And of course he won't get the place in any event. I know that."

"But I won't, either. And there's nothing I can do. I can't get even a minute to talk to her, alone. She knows what I want to say and she doesn't want to hear it."

"Of course she thinks she doesn't want to hear it," Mr. Izenga raced on, eagerly. "But don't you see, the very fact that she is afraid to listen to your side, Huntley, shows she isn't sure of herself? She's afraid she'll be influenced by your pleading and persuasion."

Many cooks like to make a specialty of salads. The salad is the appetite whetter and flavor contrast of the meal ,and as such deserves to be mixed with care. A real salad fancier may use the same kind of greenery day after day, but changes the dressing from time to time to make the salad always interesting and tantalizing.

A good salad maker keeps an assortment of herbs, spices, and flavored vinegars on hand to afford an opportunity for ingenuity in blending the oil, vinegar, and seasonings. Herbs usually include tarragon, basil, parsley, chives, a mixed herb blend, mint, thyme, and marjoram. When parsley, chives, and mint are available in the fresh state, these are the herbs to use, but their dried counterparts will do. Unless the family has an herb garden or window box, the other named herbs usually are dried.

Spices most often liked for salads include paprika, mustard, chili powder, onion and garlic salts, whole black peppers to be ground in a pepper mill, and celery salt.

Many excellent flavored vinegars may be purchased in the same fancy grocery departments which offer herbs and spices in such attractive little jars. Tarragon, garlic, basil, and other herbal vinegars are common and excellent. Red and white wine vinegars are wonderful salad flavor choices, too.

It is fun to make several flavored vinegars at home and to keep these with the other salad dressing ingredients on a special kitchen shelf which can be decorative enough to be exposed to view. Good looking bottles to hold the vinegars, each neatly labeled, and uniform jars for herbs and spices help make such a shelf an asset to a kitchen.

Spiced Vinegar for Salads

1 quart cider vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon each, whole cloves, whole black pepper, blade mace, whole allspice, mustard seed, celery seed

Heat vinegar, sugar, and salt, and pour over spices in a jar. Leave for two weeks, then strain for use as needed.

Garlic Wine Vinegar

1 quart wine vinegar
4 garlic cloves, peeled and crushed
1 teaspoon salt
5 whole cloves
5 whole peppercorns
1 teaspoon caraway seeds

Heat vinegar and pour over garlic, salt, cloves, peppers, and seeds which have been partly crushed in a mortar. Cover and set away for a week, then strain and bottle for use. A little of this vinegar usually is used with plain vinegar in making a dressing, as the garlic flavor is quite strong.

Mint Vinegar

1 pint fresh mint leaves
1 pint white wine vinegar
1 peeled garlic clove
2 whole cloves

Wash mint and bruise leaves and stems; heat vinegar and pour over mint, garlic, and cloves. Let stand overnight, then remove garlic. Let stand a week longer, strain, and pour into a bottle for use.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Peppermint Custard
[Serves six]

4 sticks peppermint candy
3 cups milk
3 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup crumbled bread or cake crumbs

Crush peppermint candy and combine it with milk in top of double boiler. Scald mixture and stir until candy is dissolved. Beat eggs slightly, and add salt. Add candy mixture slowly to beaten eggs. Sprinkle crumbs in bottom of custard cups and add custard mixture. Set cups in pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes, or until knife inserted in custard comes out clean. Cool, and serve with or without chocolate sauce.

THE QUESTION

What do you do to treat your husband or wife especially nice on a special occasion?

WHERE ASKED

THE ANSWERS

Morris Moss, auto salesman, 4955 Roscoe st.—Every day is a special occasion for my wife as far as I am concerned. I take her out to dinner and places of entertainment, buy her pretty clothes, and take good care of her. I wish she would, on some occasion, reciprocate and let me have a night out with the boys.

Irving Frankel, gas station proprietor, 4766 Cornelia av.—When I want to be exceptionally nice I have been known to help her with the dishes. What my wife enjoys most is eating out on Sunday. That's her one day in the week when she doesn't want to bother with cooking. I let her pick the place and I drive her there.

Mrs. Virginia Thurkow, housewife, 4924 Oakdale av.—I've not had much of a chance to do much for my husband on any special occasion. He's been in the service for so long. The only time I do something extra-special for him is on his birthday. That's the day he gets babied and gets his own way.

Louis L. Baer, automobile dealer, 5036 Sheridan rd.—On our 11th wedding anniversary I bought my wife a diamond cocktail ring. Once at a war bond rally I bought her a pair of nylon hose. They came as an added attraction for $10,000 worth of war bonds. She was as thrilled with the hose as if they'd actually cost 10 grand.

Mrs. Mary Norris, housewife, 2559 N. Mason av.—I usually try to have a surprise party for my husband's birthday. It's gotten to be such a habit that it isn't really a surprise any more but just a pleasant party where all our friends get together. I try to make that the best party of the year because that's his day.

Mrs. Eleanor Merrick, housewife, 2936 N. Kenneth av.—Each year I see to it that my husband has a birthday cake with candles. We started celebrating this way many years ago. Each year the candles are lit and he makes a wish and blows them out. . . . With just one puff, too. There were 48 candles on the last cake.

The Adolescent Needs Tactful, Firm Handling

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The situation outlined in the following letter seems to be one that often occurs between mothers and their young daughters:

"Sue is giving me the deepest concern. She is 13 years old now, and can be quite a delightful person when the mood strikes her, but criticism of her speech or conduct rouses her ire immediately.

"She thinks she knows what is best for her and resists our control. She is moody, stubborn, and disrespectful at one time and sweet tempered, loving, and acquiescent at another.

"How can this problem be handled best? Punishment only adds fuel to the fire," writes this mother.

In the first place, we all have to remember that there is a big difference between the baby, the little child of 5 or 6, and the young girl of 12 or 13. So many changes are taking place at this latter age, physically, mentally, and emotionally, and the desire for more independence is strong; feelings are near the surface most of the time, and it takes very little to make them spill over into unexpected speech or action. If parents grasp the fact that these humors disturb and surprise these children themselves as much as they do fathers and mothers, it will help all around.

They are old enough to have opinions of their own on some things [and they are often quite sound opinions, I've found] and to have their wishes consulted. It helps to treat boys and girls of this age as if they were nearer our own age and to show them consideration such as we might show an older person. This is an age at which we need to be tactful and modify our way of managing our children.

It is easy to retain the habit of holding a child of 12 or 13 down too much, to baby her. Instead, if it hasn't been done before, a small allowance should be given her each week, her clothes discussed with her, and her ideas respected. When she is stubborn try to let her alone.

Try to realize the cause and be understanding, kind, and patient, yet be firm, without driving, when necessity demands.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 23—The first place Tigers' pennant chances were kept in a pleasing comfortable state today by the rushing of more outside assistance to Steve O'Neill's pennant performances. Tied into a knot by world series thoughts as well as the pitching of Nelson Potter, the front runners succumbed to the Browns by 5 to 0, but instead of falling into a faint the locals were content to see Detroit's lead cut to one game.

Because the Senators closed their season by splitting a double header with the Athletics, losing the first game, 4 to 3, and winning the second, 4 to 3, the Tigers are in a position where they can clinch a tie for the pennant by winning only one of their four remaining games. Two victories or one victory and the cancelation of one game will bring them the American league championship. They're to meet the Indians here Tuesday and Wednesday and the Browns in St. Louis Saturday and Sunday.

Not convinced that the recent fadeouts on the mound of the noted Paul [Dizzy] Trout, were of any consequence, Manager O'Neill started the Terre Haute [Ind.] No. 1 voter, but his exhibition before a paid crowd of 47,380 was cut short by the Brownie bats. They chased him out of there in two innings, the net being three runs, and thereafter picked up some more in which Les Mueller and Frank Overmire, the squatty lefty, were involved.

Potter Yields Two Hits

Potter evidently refused to be disturbed by the fact that he had lost three times without winning from the Tigers this season. Of greater concern was a winning streak now stretching into eight in a row, a job he took care of by stopping the Tigers on two hits. One was a single by Hank Greenberg in the fourth and he was doubled. The other was a double by Roy Cullenbine with one out in the seventh, which opened with Roger Cramer surviving on a fumble by Vern Stephens.

As an indication that the Tigers weren't exactly on the alert by the time the ninth inning arrived, they didn't notice that the Browns had batted out of turn. Jim Tokin came in to finish the game, and the first to face him should have been Potter, but instead Gutteridge showed up and fanned. The next two batters also were disposed of. Then it was explained that Manager Luke Sewell had ordered the move so as to conserve Potter.

Trout's second pitch of the matinee was enough to arouse fear that all was not going to be well. Gutteridge turned that pitch into a single to left. Additional proof of the Trout feebleness came with

The Targets of Small

Like roses rent by jealous winds,
Like trees by lightning torn in two,
Or like a moon within the shrouds
Of shadow hung by hateful clouds—
Our greatest men earn such a due!

Which claws till it has swallowed all
Of it; and just like Him upon the rood,
The great, the beautiful, the good,
Are targets of the vicious small!

Mrs. Beck's little grocery store
Halfway down the block
Seems to be sort of a clearing house
Where the droppers-in take stock
Of what's gone on in the neighborhood
Since they chanced to meet there before,
Whenever I drop in I usually find
A quorum of them near the door.

Mrs. Monahan's rheumatism,
Old man Taylor's last spree,
The letter May Hoy just had from her boy
All get the old one-two-three;
The Fagans are painting their double frame house,
Then some one in tones quite gruff
Will come thru with the crack that the shabby old shack
Sure needed it badly enough.

Nothing malicious, nothing mean,
Just the usual neighborhood chat,

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 23 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals hammered four Cincinnati pitchers for a 9 to 6 victory over their nemesis, the Cincinnati Reds, today to keep pace with the league leading Chicago Cubs and a chance to take over the top rung when they meet the Bruins in a two game series in Chicago Tuesday and Wednesday.

The victory gave the Cardinals a bare edge of 10 victories against nine defeats with the troublesome Reds on the season's play and kept them within striking distance of at least a tie for the league leadership for the first time this year if they can whip the Cubs in their two remaining games.

The Cubs have played cousins to the Redbirds this year, yielding 15 victories while taking only five of the 20 games played.

Donnelly Yields Six Hits

Blix Donnelly, in posting his eighth victory of the season against 10 defeats, yielded only six hits. But two of them were home runs behind two walks and a base on an error by Marty Marion to whom the game was dedicated as Marty Marion day.

The Cardinals collected 12 hits including George Kurowski's 21st home run of the season with none on. They also had the benefit of four bases on balls, the same number given by Donnelly before he was relieved in the eighth inning when he faltered and issued two walks, a home run by Frank McCormick and a single by Hank Sauer.

Fans Honor Marty Marion

In celebration of Marty Marion day the fans presented him with a certificate, giving him his choice of an automobile offered by two dealers of large cars. Mrs. Marion was given a silver set and their two daughters, Virginia and Martina, each received a war bond and a doll. To the family also went a davenport set.

The Kenesaw Mountain Landis memorial baseball award was presented to Marion by the Baseball Writers association in recognition of his election as the most valuable National league player of 1944.

The gold and silver Landis award plaque on an ebony base has not been completed, but the writers presented Marion a sketch of the award.

Pair of Purdue Youngsters Acclaimed as 60 Minute Men

BY WILFRID SMITH

Collegiate football depended largely in the war years on freshman material and it has not been unusual to find these youngsters in varsity berths a few months after graduation from high school. Purdue university, however, probably established a record Saturday in its game with Marquette when two freshmen, in their first intercollegiate game, played 60 minutes each.

These young iron men were Bob De Moss, quarter back from Dayton, Ky., and Dave Shaw, right half back, from Manual Training High school, Indianapolis. They hold key positions in the Boilermaker attack. De Moss is the man under center on Purdue's T formation [Bill Canfield, left half, calls the plays, however] and he is the passer. Shaw, fastest runner on the squad, is also the most dependable punter.

Cecil Isbell, Purdue coach, explained after his boys had beaten Marquette, 14 to 13, why De Moss and Shaw played full time.

Others Without Experience

"Shaw is our kicker," Isbell said. "In the rain, we were afraid to make substitution. All players behind Shaw and De Moss are without experience."

Isbell late yesterday learned Shaw had suffered a shoulder separation in Saturday's contest which may keep him out of this week's game with Great Lakes. If Shaw is unable to play Isbell will be forced either to revamp the back field alignment or call on Alan Dale, a B team award winner last year, or Jack Scarafield, freshman from Dayton, O., to fill the vacancy.

Shaw and De Moss are fine varsity prospects. They proved that Saturday, but they were mighty tired young men in the fourth period when Marquette finally got its attack under way. De Moss, who weighs 165 pounds, bounced off big John Rudan, Marquette's 195 pound half back, on two tackles and was shaken up.

Veteran Line Tells Story

Shaw was exhausted by the end of the game. Incidentally, Marquette's second touchdown, a 10 yard pass from Bill Hickey to Carl Kaminski, was completed over Shaw's head in the end zone. Only 1:20 remained to play after this touchdown and Purdue did not lose possession of the ball after the kickoff.

Purdue apparently will have a competent line led by a splendid tackle, Pat O'Brien, but the ends are inexperienced and guard is the sole position well fortified with reserves. The back field situation is even more critical in this respect.

On the basis of Saturday's returns there is no reason to alter pre-season opinion of Western conference football. It was no surprise that Indiana defeated Michigan, 13 to 7. The teams played equally well, but Indiana's veteran line was the margin of victory. Good blocking aided Freshman George Taliaferro in getting loose early in the game. Defensive play by the line checked Michigan's last attack which would have tied and possibly won the game.

Gophers Appear Contenders

Minnesota's 34 to 0 conquest of Missouri is support of the contention the Gophers are a title possibility. Ohio State, defending champion, and still bracketed with the Gophers, meets Missouri this Saturday. Rain obscured accurate view of prospects at Northwestern and Wisconsin. The latter played a scoreless tie in the mud at Great Lakes. On the ground, the Wildcats outrushed Iowa State 292 yards to 75 and won 18 to 6.

Illinois scored a 23 to 6 victory over Pittsburgh and drew benefit from this practice for the game this week at Notre Dame. While Illinois gained 213 yards by rushing, its first touchdown was the result of a pass. Illinois' veteran line still is its best asset.

AMERICANS WIN RUSSIAN-LESS BERLIN SPORTS

BERLIN, Sept. 23 (AP)—Snubbed by the Russians, who withdrew without explanation, American, British, and French troops staged a little Olympics at the Berlin Olympic stadium today which the doughboys won by an overwhelming score over their allied opponents.

A crowd of 15,000 saw the GIs repeat the performance of United States athletes on the same field in the 1936 Olympics, by piling up 94 points to 43 for the British and 25 for the French.

Altho the Russians gave no reason for their 11th hour withdrawal, it was understood they walked out when their request to bring in athletes from other sectors was turned down. Only troops stationed in Berlin were eligible.

Sgt. Pete Watkins of Lubbock, Tex., former star at Texas A. and M., won two events, the high jump and the 110 meter hurdles, to lead in individual scoring.

The athletes paraded around the big bowl before the meet started to the tune of American, British, and French bands. Newsreel cameramen ground away from the vantage point in what was once Hitler's private box.

BY EDWARD BURNS

Andy Pafko's grand slam homer off the sometimes very tough Preacher Roe was about the most beautiful response an athlete could devise in acknowledgement of a day in his honor. For yesterday was Pafko day before 43,755 in Wrigley field and the Cubs were trailing, 3 to 0, and hadn't got a man on base prior to the big third inning in which Andy and his pals produced six runs. The Cubs scored one more run in the fourth inning and that effected the final score: Cubs, 7; Pittsburgh, 3.

The outcome enabled the Chicagoans to remain 1½ games ahead of the Cardinals.

The scheduled second game was postponed to today, because of a cloudburst which broke loose immediately after the Cubs had taken the field. Yesterday's postponement and Saturday's will make up a double header this afternoon.

Passeau, Prim Pitch Today

Claude Passeau, who had gone to the mound but didn't make a pitch, will work one of the games this afternoon and Ray Prim the other. Rip Sewell, who warmed up for the scheduled second game yesterday, will work today, and Fritz Ostermueller also will get a call.

The Cards will be idle, so, if the Cubs can win two today they will enter the two game series with the Cards tomorrow with a 2½ game lead.

After the games with the Cards tomorrow and Wednesday, the Cubs will play single contests in Cincinnati Thursday and Friday. Saturday will be an off day, and the Cubs on Sunday will wind up the season in a single game with the Pirates in Pittsburgh. After they leave here the Carbs will play a night game in Pittsburgh Thursday, a single game in Cincinnati Saturday and a double header Sunday.

Wyse Wins 21st Victory

Now getting back to yesterday's contest in which Hank Wyse went all the way for his 21st victory. Hank seemed a bit high strung in the second and third Pirate innings. The Pittsburghers scored one run on a single by Frankie Gustine and a double by Bob Elliott in the second inning and two in the third on a single by Al Gionfriddo and Jim Russell's No. 12 homer.

After the big third inning demonstration of Pafko, et al, Wyse really settled down. He yielded only four hits from the third inning on and two of these were knocked with two out in the ninth and did not annoy any one.

Before the game Pafko was presented with a watch and two traveling bags by the Chicago Slovak Good Will club. The presentation was made at the plate by the Rev. J. J. Pelikan, pastor of the Trinity Slovak Lutheran church.

His first time up, in the second inning, the mighty Andy, who batted .500 in the recent St. Louis series, performed as athletes usually do when they are accorded ceremonies at the plate. He struck out.

Pafko Quickly Makes Amends

But that wasn't Andy's style. When he came up in the next inning with the bases loaded he busted one out of the park to score

BY EDWARD PRELL
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 23—The Chicago Cardinals started another football season in the same old way this afternoon, but they at least were respectable in defeat. The Detroit Lions, no ball of fire themselves, won by the modest tally of 10 to 0.

It was as drab an opener as the National Football league has had in its 25 seasons. The crowd, liberally estimated at 6,500, was pelted by rain which fell in the third and fourth quarters.

This was the 27th consecutive defeat suffered by the Cards since they beat the Lions in October of 1942.

Cards' Attack Impotent

The Cards tried manfully, but clearly demonstrated that they still are in the experimental stage with their T formation attack. Paul Collins threw most of the 20 Chicago passes, of which only three were completed. The running attack reached even high failure heights, when the Lions' line yielded only 26 yards and no first downs. The losers picked up one first down on passing, another one by penalty, tho having possession of the ball for 17 series of downs.

The Lions scored their touchdown early in the second quarter when Chuck Fenebock, late of the marines, picked up Johnny Knolla's fumble and ran 37 yards unmolested down the sidelines. Bill Callihan kicked the point and the 7 to 0 lead stood up until the final 30 seconds of the third period when Dave Ryan, a newcomer from Hardin-Simmons, booted a 35 yard field goal.

Blackwell Able Punter

The one bright spot for the Cardinals was the punting of Hal Blackwell, 205 pound back from South Carolina. He had kicks of 48, 48, 51, and 47 yards.

The Cards were in Detroit territory twice in the first quarter. Al Drulis recovered Jack Matheson's fumble on the 33 shortly after the kickoff and the Cards moved to the 24 on Collins' pass to Joe Carter. This was their deepest point of penetration in the game. Later in the period, Fenenbock's poor punt was grounded on the Detroit 42, but again the Cards' attack failed.

The Lions started rolling again after their touchdown in the second quarter, but Leo Cantor intercepted Ryan's pass on the Chicago 19. Then Callihan snatched Col-

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 23 [Special] —The Chicago Bears are the champions of the New York Giants for the 1945 season by virtue of a thrilling 14 to 13 victory achieved this afternoon in their only meeting of the football season.

A crowd of 11,947 saw the Giants' spectacular bid for a tie in the final minute fall short when Jack Morton, Bear end, hurtled across the line of scrimmage to block Ward Cuff's placement try for the New Yorkers' all-important point.

Giants Get Assist in Play

The Giants later discovered they unwittingly gave Morton an assist on his game saving play. When Morton blocked Cuff's try for the point after touchdown the Giants had only 10 men on the field. Thus only six men were in the Giant line when Morton drove thru to slap the ball down.

The National league exhibition produced few thrills in the first half as the adversaries could find few weak spots. Steve Owen's four man line holding the Bears fairly well in check. Then Civic stadium rocked with cheers during the last two quarters.

Bears March 80 Yards

The Bears went 80 yards, for the most part on the ground, for their first touchdown. Charley Mitchell and Tipp Mooney did most of the lugging before Jim Fordham bolted over inside tackle. Pete Guduaskas converted.

The embattled Giant line blocked Johnny Long's quick kick, and Marion Pugh, recently discharged army air forces captain, recovered on the 13 as the third period ended.

Pugh carried to the 5, then lateraled to Mike Klotovich, who carried over. Ward Cuff tied the score at 7 to 7.

Guduaskas Provides Win Margin

Klotovich fumbled a pass from Pugh, and Gudauskas raced 19 to the Giant 32. Sid Luckman passed to Ken Kavanaugh and then Al Grygo, who went 13 yards to score. Guduaskas again converted, his point eventually providing the margin of victory.

Long intercepted Arnie Herber's pass, but the play was nullified when the Bears had 12 men on the field. Herber passed to Lou Eaton on the New York 47, and another to Frank Liebel was ruled complete because of interference on the Bear 14. The same Liebel then made a dizzy stab of Herber's pitch in the end zone to make it 14 to 13. Morton thereupon came thru to save the game for the Bears.

Swedes Beat Sports, 4-0, in Soccer Play

BY OFFSIDE

Yesterday's rainstorm postponed all Major and First Division soccer games with the exception of the Swedish-American - Chicago Sport club match in Winnemac park stadium, which the Swedes won, 4 to 0.

Tommy Reilly scored the first goal for the Swedes in the opening period. Thereafter, between gusts of wind and rain, the Swedish-Americans managed to add three more—by Al Waldron, Kid Johnson, and Gene Edwards.

Rain Eases 1 to 0 Lead

The Hakoah Center - Schwabens contest had been in progress for 13 minutes when the heavy rain forced its postponement. The Hakoahs had a 1 to 0 lead at the time.

Scoreless at the end of 28 minutes, and with the rain steadily increasing, officials in charge of the match between the Vikings and Hansa decided to call a halt. Sparta, in its match with the Rangers, had a one goal lead when the game was called.

League Leaders Meet Tonight

An important meeting of National league club managers and delegates will be held tonight in the Schwabens' clubhouse, 3246 N. California av., to make final arrangements for the all-star match between Chicago players and the Astoria Entracht, national amateur champions, Oct. 10 in Sparta stadium.

CARDS LOSE PRO LEAGUE OPENER TO LIONS, 10 TO 0

lins' pass and ran to the Cards' 35, but the Lions were penalized for clipping on the play and set back to their own 47. With less than a minute remaining in the half, Eddie Rucinski recovered Bob Keene's fumble and ran 3 yards to the Detroit 26. Collins' passes were stopped and, on fourth down, Conway Baker failed on a field goal attempt from the 27 yard line.

Zeno Prevents Score

Early in the third quarter, a pass from Collins bounced out of Rucinski's arms to Callihan, who ran to the Cards' 43. Ryan failed on an attempted field goal from the Chicago 47. After Blackwell's punt was partially blocked and rolled dead on the Chicago 44, the Lions made more menacing signs. Fenenbock passed to Green, who ran to the 23. On third down, Fenenbock pitched a long pass to Art Van Tone, who ran 5 yards to the Cards' 7. Frank Zeno intercepted Fenenbock's second down pass behind the goal for a touchback.

Bill Greene's recovery of Bill Reynold's fumble on the Chicago 31 set up the Detroit field goal with 30 seconds remaining in the period. Ryan kicked it from the 35.

Wilson Ejected from Game

The Cards fared no better in the fourth quarter and one of their guards, Gordon Wilson, was tossed out of the game for roughness. Their one chance came when Rucinski fell on Cotton Price's fumble on the Detroit 18. On second down, Price intercepted Collins' pass and moved from their 9 to the 37 when Cantor intercepted Fenenbock's pass and ran 23 yards to the Detroit 32. Again it was the same story. The Cards got nowhere.

Gale Retains Title in Wind Swept Regatta

Gale, Harry G. Nye Jr.'s 39 foot R boat, successfully defended the Universal division time prize and Keewaydin, Edgar B. Tolman Jr.'s auxiliary cutter, captured the cruising time prize yesterday in the 24th annual open regatta off Chicago harbor honoring Commodore Sheldon Clark, veteran yachtsman and four times chief flag officer of the Chicago Yacht club sponsor of the event. Forty-seven yachts started and 39 finished.

Strong south winds before and during the regatta, and a 43 mile line squall from the southwest at the finish disabled some of the competing yachts. One of the racers, W. W. Fisher's Nirvana, withdrew to go to the assistance of a capsized catboat, not in the race. Tar Baby, Hugo Griffin's 58 foot 10 meter class cutter, was leading the fleet at the second buoy when the shrouds came off the mast spreaders. The 80 foot spar began to bend, so the crew dropped all canvas. Revenge, another 10 meter yacht, not competing, towed Tar Baby into Chicago harbor.

Two Boats Lose Mainsails

The schooner Blue Moon and Commodore H. F. MacNeil's flagship Venturon, from the Chicago Corinthian Yacht club, both lost their mainsails. Commodore J. A. Hadwiger and Frank Mulvihill's Q. boat, Quest, had its jibsail blown out at the start, but hoisted another and sailed on.

Nutmeg, 22 foot sloop chartered by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hedden, was on the way to the start in company with Loch Lomond, Robert Cameron's 22 footer, when the mainsail on Nutmeg blew out. Carl Adams of the Chicago Yacht club, near-by in his 35 foot cruiser Miss Lucy, passed a towline to the Heddens as their boat was within a few feet of being dashed onto the concrete outer harbor breakwater.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 (AP)—Playing like a pre-war football team, the Washington Redskins today swept to a 21 to 7 victory over the Green Bay Packers, National league champions.

The game was merely an exhibition before 27,125 fans, but it was played as hard as a midseason affair. The result sounded a warning that the Redskins will be back in the title picture after a mediocre season last year.

Joe Aguirre, Frank Akins, and Bob Seymour scored in the second, third and fourth periods to pile up a 21 to 0 Redskin lead before the Packers clicked for their only touchdown well along in the final period.

Filchock Central Figure

Frank Filchock, understudy to Sammy Baugh in the Redskins' T formation, was a central figure in the first two touchdowns. He whipped a 33 yard scoring pass to Aguirre on the first play of the second quarter. It capped an 80 yard Redskin drive.

Filchock fielded a line drive Green Bay kick on the dead run and raced it back 38 yards to set off a 74 yard Redskin attack in the third period. Akins rammed over from the 5 yard line.

Baugh completely fooled the Packers on a fake place-kick from the 38 yard line for the final Redskin score. He jumped up, fired the ball to Seymour in the flat and Seymour eluded several tacklers to go over standing up.

Packers Come to Life

Held outside the Washington 25 yard line all afternoon, the Packers came to life by going all the way after receiving the kickoff. Clyde Goodnight speared Roy McKay's pass from the 5 to save the Packers from a shutout.

Baugh, looking more at home in the T formation, completed 15 of 20 passes for 183 of the 264 yards the Redskins gained in the air. The Packers, usually effective overhead, gained only 87 yards on 24 attempts.

Joe Louis Given Legion of Merit Citation by Army

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Tech. Sgt. Joe Louis, world heavyweight boxing champion, today was presented the Legion of Merit by Maj. Gen. Clarence H. Kells, commanding general of the New York port of embarkation.

The presentation ceremony was held at Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, and was broadcast over the Army hour.

The citation read in part that Louis not only has been "a model soldier" but has entertained 2,000,000 soldiers in many parts of the world "by frequent boxing exhibitions which entailed considerable risk to his boxing future as heavyweight champion of the world."

"Whenever possible," the citation read "he visited the camp and theater hospitals and his encouragement to sick and injured soldiers had a definite recovery value and morale lift."

Eagles Beat Rams, 17-7; 4th Straight

Akron, O., Sept. 23 (AP)—Steve Van Buren broke away for two long touchdown jaunts today to lead the Philadelphia Eagles to a 17 to 7 victory over the Cleveland Rams in a National Football league exhibition game before 20,000 in Akron's Rubber bowl.

The ex-Louisiana State half back sped 62 yards after grabbing a pass from Al Sherman in the third quarter, and shook off several tacklers in the second as he ran around end to score from the 24 yard stripe.

Greenwood Scores for Rams

Don Greenwood slipped thru tackle for 35 yards and Cleveland's only score in the third period after Steve Pritko recovered a fumble on the Eagles' 35 yard line.

Cleveland recovered another fumble on Philadelphia's 42 and Fred Gehrke's two end sweeps reached the Eagles' 7, but Sonny Karnofsky intercepted a pass by Bob Waterfield and returned to his own 43. The Eagles lost 5 yards before shaking Van Buren loose for the payoff punch.

Waterfield's passes to Pritko and the plunges of Greenwood dominated play in the opening period as the Rams marched 61 yards to Philadelphia's 26 yard stripe, where Waterfield completed passes to Al Benton on the 5, and to Pritko on the 1, but both were nullified by penalties. The former U. C. L. A. star's field goal attempt was blocked and the Eagles took command.

Zimmerman Adds 3 Points

Late in the second period Zimmerman's field goal raised the Eagles' margin to 10 points.

The Rams throttled the Eagles' devastating running attack in the last period, but Philadelphia broke up Cleveland's passing attempts to coast to its fourth straight exhibition victory. The loss was Cleveland's first in four starts.

COLONELS HALT SAINTS, 6 TO 0, IN PLAY-OFF SERIES

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 23 (AP)—Behind the five hit shutout pitching of George Diehl, big knuckleball right-hander, Louisville defeated St. Paul, 6 to 0, this afternoon before 11,911. The victory reduced St. Paul's edge in the American association championship 4 of 7 game playoff series to two games to one. The series will be resumed Tuesday in St. Paul.

The Colonels made 11 hits off St. Paul pitchers—Dick Lanahan, knocked out in the two-run Louisville fifth; George Coffman, victim of two unearned runs in the seventh, and Walt Tauscher, who was nicked for two runs, one of them unearned, in the eighth.

Gin of pre-war quality made from pre-war imported botanicals

1 Today Hiram Walker brings you gin made with the same imported herbs, roots and berries used in the making of Hiram Walker's pre-war gin.

2 And remember, between Repeal and Pearl Harbor Americans bought more Walker-made gin than any other kind.

Juniper from Italy! Harvesters "spank" the prized juniper bush of the Apennines with sticks, to shake its ripe, unmatchable berries onto sheets laid carefully on the ground beneath. These—and ALL the herbs, roots and berries used in making Hiram Walker's Gin—come from a supply imported before the war.

TODAY, you can once again enjoy the pleasure of real, pre-war quality gin.

For Hiram Walker's Gin is made not only to pre-war formula . . . but from pre-war imported botanicals which are unobtainable today.

The reason we now have these rare botanicals, like cassia from China and coriander from Czechoslovakia, is this:

Prior to the war it was always our policy to purchase these botanicals only in the best crop years—and to buy far in excess of our annual requirements. This enabled us always to have on hand a treasured reserve.

When we suspended gin distilling in favor of war production in February 1942, this priceless reserve was carefully preserved and sealed away.

Today, it's these pre-war imported botanicals that give Hiram Walker's Gin its real, pre-war quality. The quality which, between Repeal and Pearl Harbor, led Americans to buy more Walker-made gin than any other kind.

STUDY EXPORTS CURB TILL U. S. NEEDS ARE MET

WPB's Liquidation Expected Soon

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 (AP)—The government may place new controls on exports to prevent foreign buyers from draining off goods and materials needed at home.

Reconversion Director Snyder, it was learned today, has authorized the war production board to take action in any case where heavy export shipments of goods or materials might slow up reconversion.

The WPB itself is expected to be liquidated about Nov. 1. Its remaining controls over industry would be transferred to Snyder's office of war mobilization and reconversion.

Plans to Divide Operations

J. A. Krug, chairman, expects to present WPB's liquidation plan to President Truman this week. Within the next month, according to high sources, Krug plans to divide WPB into these two operations:

A reconversion bureau to manage such scarcities as tin, lumber, rubber, and chemicals, and to break any bottlenecks which may impede the rapid transition of industry to peace.

A demobilization bureau, to handle the liquidation of WPB itself and to arrange for shifting its labor units and industry committees to other government agencies.

Perhaps 3,500 of WPB's personnel in Washington may be taken into the reconversion office. WPB once employed 22,000.

May Curb Lumber Exports

Krug, in an interview, said export restrictions may be needed "very frequently" in the next six to eight months, to prevent hardship to consumers and bottlenecks in industry's supply of materials.

Lumber is one material whose export may be limited by government quotas, altho Krug said no decision has been made. Last week each manufacturer of passenger cars and trucks was ordered not to send overseas more than the percentage he exported before the war. This quota procedure probably will be followed in other commodities.

Krug was authorized by Snyder to certify any imperiled commodity to the foreign economic administration. FEA in turn will apply the export quotas, if the item is one exported by this country; or continue purchasing programs, if the item is an imported commodity.

RFC Offers Construction Material and Equipment

The Reconstruction Finance corporation said yesterday it is offering for sale approximately 12 million dollars' worth of construction material and equipment from the Indiana ordnance works, plant No. 2, Charlestown, Ind.

Du Pont Plans Record Total of Peace Jobs

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. expects to employ more workers in the post-war years than at any time of peace in its history unless business conditions are "seriously abnormal."

In a statement on post-war prospects, the company said it had improved its products and added new ones during the war, and was ready with the "labor, tools, research personnel, knowledge, and background" to meet a "great pentup demand for the products of industry."

Tells of New Plastics

The company stated it looked forward "to the future with confidence," but warned that its ability "to contribute in an important way to post-war employment is contingent upon not being handicapped by abnormal governmental restrictions."

"Among the new products which are expected to be increasingly important in post-war production," said du Pont, "are the more modern synthetic plastics such as the shatter resistant, transparent 'lucite' and the recently announced polythene from which waterproof coatings, piping, and insulation for electric wiring can be made.

"Nylon will be an outstanding factor, not only for hosiery but for many important woven fabrics. It is also expected to be of wide use as a plastic. A new form of nylon, as a plastic molding powder, is tough flexible, and has a heat distortion point of 400 degrees at low load."

Used in New Type Flooring

The company said its synthetic rubber, neoprene, may be used in a new type terrazzo flooring in which marble chips are stirred into the latex. The mixture may be poured on almost any floor surface, it said, and troweled down to form a resilient, durable, nonslipping surface.

Beside additions constructed for war purposes, the company is building or will build at least five new plants for manufacture of nylon yarns and plastics, polythene, chemicals, and paints.

CELOTEX RAISES CASH TO EXPAND ITS OPERATIONS

Bror Dahlberg, president of Celotex corporation, yesterday told stockholders the company had completed arrangements to make 5½ million dollars of new cash available for expansion. Celotex sold 5 millions of 3¼ per cent debentures, 100,000 shares of preferred stock, and a large part of its holdings in Certain-teed Products corporation and provided for retirement of $2,757,000 of 3¼ per cent debentures. Consolidated net income for the nine months ended July 31 was $489,499, or 49 cents a share, compared with $294,569, or 24 cents a share, for the corresponding 1944 period.

AWAITING PRICE CEILING

I should like information regarding the reconversion status of Chicago Flexible Shaft company.—D. B.

The management recently reported that the company's war contracts are entirely canceled and that work is proceeding in preparation for again manufacturing its household products. The rearrangements may take a few weeks more. Ceiling prices on many of the appliances, however, had not been established, it was said, and distribution could not be undertaken until these were known.

The appliances normally manufactured include kitchen mixing machines, toasters, waffle irons, coffee makers, irons, and heating pads. Other products are sheep shearing machines, electric razors, industrial heat treating furnaces, and lawn sprinklers. Furnaces and sheep shearing equipment were manufactured during the war, along with specialized military products, and more recently limited quantities of electric irons.

Earnings per share on 539,751 shares outstanding after a 3 for 1 split in 1944 were: 1944, $2.17; 1943, $2.04; 1942, $2.11; 1941, $2.80; 1940, $2.78; 1939, $2.93; 1938, $3.12. Dividends on the split stock have been at the yearly rate of $1.40.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 23 (AP)—Expansion of its tanker fleet will cost Standard Oil Company of California about 13 million dollars by the middle of next year, H. D. Affiliated and subsidiary companies also "are planning energetic programs in the foreign field," Collier said.

FDIC PREMIUMS MAY BE CUT; ASK DEPOSIT REPORT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 (AP)—Federal Deposit Insurance corporation officials indicated today that the year-end may bring a reduction in insurance premiums for the approximately 14,000 covered banks, and possibly extension of coverage.

The FDIC announced it will call for a report on deposits as of Oct. 10; its first call since 1941.

Officials commenting privately said that the corporation is heading for a goal of 1 billion dollars in insurance funds and that it expects to reach that goal by the end of the year. There has been a persistent demand in some banking circles for a reduction of the premium, an extension of the coverage, and for the removal of government money from the general insurance funds.

Present capital of the FDIC is about 900 millions, of which 150 millions has been subscribed by the treasury and about 129 millions represents federal reserve bank stock. Each bank whose deposits are insured by the FDIC pays 1-12th of one per cent of its average deposits.

CHARGE BRITISH RESTRICT U. S. TRADE IN INDIA

Preference Unfair, Americans Hold

BY ALFRED WAGG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 23—American companies doing business in India are experiencing difficulty carrying on normal operations because of various restrictive British trade practices, it was learned today. Nothing can be imported into India from the United States unless not obtainable from the United Kingdom. American businesses are represented by British agents, and other forms of unfriendliness exist.

The arbitrary preference for British empire goods was sharply criticized at a recent meeting of the American Chemical association in Bombay. The only American citizen among the 12 association members present proposed sending a message to Secretary of Commerce Wallace protesting British practices, but the proposal was voted down.

"At Odds with Allied Concept"

"We feel it is discriminatory in nature to be restricted to supplying only those medical needs unobtainable or in short supply from the United Kingdom," the unsent message said. "The restrictions virtually mean a restricted tariff wall, creating trade controversies in price, bilateral trade, distribution, and other variances with the allied concept.

"The total import to India of pharmaceuticals is extremely small in comparison with international finance, yet important to the health needs of the country. We feel the need for controls where world stores are in short supply, but we do not believe in restrictions imposed on freely or partially available supplies because they are made in the United Kingdom."

British Agents Restrict Sales

Representation of American companies is undertaken by British agents mainly to control the volume of business of these companies, it was said. Their business thus is restricted under contracts to agents who sell only enough of the various commodities to keep the agreements. Meanwhile, British products are pushed.

The latest act considered unfriendly to United States interests is a proposal of the Bankers Foreign Exchange association to exclude Indian banks not in the association from foreign exchange profits. Since most Indian banks are not members, they would lose substantial revenues, including those accruing from 90 per cent of American transactions.

Prospect Slim for Escalator Installations in Rail Stations

Prospects are slim that Chicago railway stations soon may provide escalators like those in stations of some other cities to make traveling more convenient, a survey of rail terminals disclosed yesterday. Several of the Chicago stations have steep stairs which are difficult to climb when carrying heavy luggage.

Officials of the North Western said they were at a temporary standstill in consideration of an escalator to connect the street and train shed levels. Previously optimistic about the possibility of installing an escalator after the war, officials said structural problems have arisen which will at least delay their program.

Blocked by Civic Programs

At the La Salle street station, which serves the New York Central and Rock Island railroads, it was said that plans for civic improvements will delay indefinitely the installation of escalators, altho the subject has not been dropped.

Extension of the proposed Congress st. express highway thru the station and plans to build a west side subway under the station, it was explained, make it difficult to proceed with escalator plans because the extent of required alterations to the building cannot now be determined.

Union Station Studies Idea

Officials of the Union station are studying the possibility of installing escalators, it was disclosed, but no immediate decision was expected. Consideration of several places where escalators could be used advantageously was reported, one at the Canal street side of the concourse where steep stairs lead to the street level.

The Illinois Central said that plans to install escalators in the Central station were in abeyance until determination of what other improvements may be made in the station.

Cities having escalators in railroad stations include New York, Philadelphia, Omaha, St. Paul, and Montreal.

GIs' HIT PARADE IN EUROPE ISN'T LIKE ONE IN U. S.

4 of 10 Favorite Songs Click Overseas

BY LARRY WOLTERS

The GI Hit Parade, as aired on the American Forces network in Europe, is at considerable divergence with the domestic counterpart aired over CBS on Saturday nights. Of the 10 tunes most featured at home during August on the Hit Parade only four appeared on the AFN score sheet. The disparity is caused in part by the lapse in time before the new tunes filter over to the troops and also by the fact that many songs with a special GI twist become popular over there.

The AFN broadcasts a European Hit Parade of 10 top tunes each week based on requests received by the networks' stations in France, England, and Germany. Some of the GI favorites never make the grade at home. Many leaders at home for several months remain relatively unknown abroad. The big domestic favorite, "Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe," has not yet rated on the overseas Hit Parade. It takes about three months of success at home before a song begins perking abroad.

One of the big favorites overseas is "Why Is a Private a Private?", a typical GI tune, as sung by Ethel Merman on a noncommercial recording, and "Three Day Pass," especially written for Celeste Holm for her U. S. O. tour by Oscar Hammerstein.

Recently the most popular selections played on the European Hit Parade were: "Sentimental Journey," "Laura," "Dream," "There, I've Said It Again," "Bell Bottom Trousers," "I Should Care," "My Dreams Are Getting Better All the Time," "Nancy," "Candy," and "Robin Hood."

At the same time the domestic Hit Parade's list was headed by "Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe," "If I Loved You," "Gotta Be This or That," "Till the End of Time," "The More I See of You," and "I Wish I Knew."

This will be a busy day for Tommy Bartlett, lately out of piloting army planes. At 11 a. m. today he introduces his new show, Meet the Stars, over WMAQ. And at 3:15 p. m. he bows in with Meet Tommy Bartlett on W-G-N. Both shows will be given Mondays thru Fridays before audiences.

The Theater Guild is moving its show from New York to Chicago next Sunday evening for the first of 10 broadcasts featuring Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. The Lunts are vacationing at their summer home in Genessee Depot, Wis. They will appear in "The Guardsman" by Ferenc Molnar next Sunday from local ABC studios. The following week the show moves back east.

Western Springs Yank Weds Nurse in Germany

Lt. Geraldine Wagner, an army nurse from Adrian, Mo., was married Sept. 12 at Gundelsheim, Germany, to Lt. Fred F. Cherye of 4150 Grand av., Western Springs, an army report received here yesterday disclosed. They spent their honeymoon at Heidelberg, where they occupied the bridal suite in the famous Schloss hotel. The bridegroom, who expects a discharge soon under the point system, has served 31 months in Europe and the Pacific area. His bride has served 15 months in the European theater.
